PREFACE

THIS work is intended for those who desire to acquire a fair knowledge of the Castilian tongue in the shortest possible time. It makes no pretension to completeness, but when the student arrives at the end of it, having mastered its contents, he should be able to write and speak the language with a very fair degree of accuracy.

Practice with natives and with Spanish literature will be necessary for perfect understanding.

I am greatly indebted to Captain A. T. Smith for his criticism and for his kind assistance in correcting the proofs.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

COMPARATIVELY, the Spanish tongue is not a difficult one to acquire. The pronunciation is simple, following fixed rules, and the accidence and syntax, in a broad sense, will present very few stumbling-blocks. In questions of advanced style all languages, of course, become complicated in their construction. This point, however, may be dismissed for the time being, since we are to learn the idiom from the beginning and in its simplest form at first in order to prepare a solid foundation for the more difficult work later.

The student of Spanish is fortunate in having ready at his command a fairly extensive vocabulary, due to the resemblance of many Spanish words, in both orthography and meaning, with English ones.

I select any Spanish work at random from my bookcase and encounter, in the opening pages, the following words, which the reader will recognise and understand at once, even though the spelling may not be, in every case, exactly that of English—

Volumen	Literatura
Moderno	Valor
Principal	$\mathbf{Extenso}$
Público	Personal
Autor	Existir
Clásico	Oficial

IdeaHorrorCompatriotaActualVitalSilenciosoIndirectoFilósofoUltimoAtmósferaAmorosoLiterario

Most English words ending in '-ion' have '-ión' in Spanish—

Consideración Publicación Explicación Investigación Definición Generación Porción Cuestién Acción Repulsión Habitación Concepción Indicación Creación Observación Emoción Manifestación Impresión Importación Sensación

The English substantive ending '-ty' is usually found in Spanish as '-dad'—

Sinceridad Austeridad
Idealidad Realidad
Generosidad Temeridad
Ciudad (city) Tranquilidad
Universidad Sinceridad

The suffix '-ly' of English adverbs becomes in Spanish -mente'—

Profundamente Momentáneamente Frecuentamente Generalmente

The foregoing are but a few instances of the close relationship between the English and Spanish tongues; there are hosts of others. If the student will scan the columns of any Spanish periodical he will discover dozens of words strongly resembling English ones; it remains for him to master the intervening words, the purport of which he, as a beginner, will, of course, understand.

This quick recognition of likeness will give him very little assistance in speaking the tongue, though the know-ledge that his work is, to a great extent, simplified will, without doubt, tend to encourage him. Few of the Spanish words I have chosen as examples would be understood by a native of Spain if they were pronounced by a Briton who knew no Spanish. The explanation is that both our vowels and consonants have sometimes other values than are found in Spanish, and vice versa, as I will show in the chapter dealing with pronunciation. The student who learns a foreign language merely for the purpose of reading is depriving himself of manifold pleasures, and will never attain originality; there is as much fascination in speaking and writing as in reading.

Now, it is quite a simple matter to grasp the signification of some words by studying the context, but it is by no means easy to recall a word at any given moment. It requires, therefore, very little effort to read and comprehend what one reads. The question of speaking and writing is entirely another matter, and demands a certain degree of fluency on the student's part, which can only be obtained by constant repetition. By constantly repeating a word or phrase it becomes absorbed by the brain without any effort of will and can generally be recalled instantly. Hundreds of expressions that are stored away somewhere in our brain-cells have been retained there by constant repetition. One of the secrets of modern advertising lies in bringing certain words, phrases, or illustrations continually before the eye of the public. It is, indeed, a very successful method.

Consider, for a moment, the number of advertisements which you can remember having seen at various periods of your life. We have no reason to memorise these things, yet it is inevitable that we should do so, for they are thrust upon us at every turn,-in our periodicals, at the railway station, on moving vehicles, and on walls. The result of this constant repetition is clear; we memorise what we see by what may be termed a process of gradual absorption. By such a means we are less likely to forget than if we taxed the brain heavily over a short period. This is the best of all systems to adopt in the study of modern foreign languages, and even those words which resemble English words in their orthography must be treated in the same way. A large vocabulary is of little value unless it can be used for purposes of reading, writing, and speaking. I do not intend this work to be a complete guide to the Spanish tongue, for there exist so many already, and, moreover, my purpose would not be served by so doing. I propose only to teach the colloquial idiom with such idiomatic expressions as may be encountered in daily speech.

An augmented vocabulary will only be necessary after the reader has mastered the contents of this book.

The ordinary cheap phrase-books should be eschewed altogether by beginners, since the majority of them give only one probable answer to each question and will certainly not lead to versatility.

I have found, from personal experience, that students learn with increased speed if they gesticulate moderately whilst repeating certain passages. It may be suggested that expressive Spanish is rich in gesticulation, which ought to be practised by learners. Another point that requires special attention is the method of utterance.

The beginner must neither mumble nor whisper when practising any phrase or passage, for mobility of the organs of speech is more than necessary to fluent articulation.

The lips and the tongue especially should be mobile and the jaws must be given fuller play than is usual in speaking the English tongue. Many beginners, in their efforts to speak like a native and overcome by their own enthusiasm, imagine that rapidity of utterance tends to render their meaning clearer; but this is quite a misguided idea and does not constitute fluency. A man may be a fluent speaker, though a slow and deliberate one; on the other hand, another may declaim with great speed and yet, make no pretence to fluency on account of the poorness of his grammar. It is rarely necessary to speak hurriedly. The tonic accent in Spanish is placed usually upon the penultimate syllable; i.e., the syllable before the last; elsewhere it is indicated by a graphic sign. 'Tone' takes a very important place in the study of foreign tongues and, unfortunately, very little attention is paid to it in teaching, for it is not only conducive to clear understanding, but it lends, at the same time, valuable assistance to the memory.

'Tone' is more than pronunciation; it is that vocal quality which distinguishes the native from the foreigner. Though it may not be taught by means of a book, it can be acquired from the native.

Language-study ought never to be forced, yet one should concentrate all one's thoughts upon the lesson while it is in progress, and this can always be done without tiresome effort.

The amount of labour entailed in the acquirement of a foreign speech is as nothing compared to the benefit an intelligent individual may reap from such knowledge, for it not only brings its own reward as an asset to one's education, and, incidentally, to one's profession, but it also provides an admirable training for the brain in any other work it may be called upon to do.

Now, take this book with you on your walks into the country and read aloud as you go. This is the healthiest form of study.

Take it with you into the garden, on your daily journeys to and from your place of business, and on your holidays, and read either aloud or silently, even for a brief period. Remember that every odd minute is of value. Strive to cultivate persistency, and if you cannot go forward with your work, do not, on any account, fall behind. When you do not feel sufficiently energetic to undertake the study of a new chapter it would be a wise plan to read over the back work. There should be a frequent revision of all that has been done, for this forms the foundation of one's knowledge, and it is quite evident that one's progress depends upon the soundness of the elementary work. Do not imagine, because a Spanish word resembles its English equivalent, that less notice should be taken of it, but learn it as carefully as you do the rest, giving special attention to its pronunciation.

CHAPTER II

PRONUNCIATION

VERY few of the Spanish sounds will trouble the Briton. The vowels are pronounced as follows—

A, as English 'a' in 'art' and 'father.'

E, as English 'a' in 'fame,' spoken quickly without any suspicion of a diphthong.

I, as English 'ee' in 'meet,' spoken quickly.

O, as English 'o' in 'poet' or 'wrote.'

U, as English 'oo' in 'boot' or the 'o' of 'whose.'

In order to obtain the correct value of the above sounds in Spanish, the English equivalents should, as I have stated, be spoken quickly, since the Spaniards never drawl or prolong their vowels in conversation.

The following consonants are sounded as in English:

f, l, m, n, p, s, t.

The difference between 'b' and 'v' is sometimes almost indistinguishable. The beginner, however, should give to each its English value.

'C' before 'a,' 'o,' or 'u' is sounded as in 'cake'; when followed by 'e' or 'i' it resembles a faint 'th' in 'thank.'

As English 'th'
Cebra (zebra).
Cedro (cedar).
Cera (wax).
Certificado (certificate).
Cerveza (beer).

As 'c' in 'cake'
Cabello (horse).
Cabello (hoar).
Cocina (kitchen).
Codo (elbow).

Cierto (certain). Cuatro (four).
Cigarro (cigar). Cuchara (spoon).
Cinco 1 (five). Cuello (neck).
Civilización (civilisation). Cuna (cradle).

'Ch' is pronounced as in 'church.'

'D' resembles English 'd'; sometimes at the end of words it sounds like a very faint 'th,' as in 'that,' especially the final 'd' of '-dad' (ciudad, universidad, etc.).

'G' before 'a,' 'o' or 'u' resembles the English 'g' in the word 'garter'; before 'e' and 'i' it is equivalent to the German 'ch' in 'loch' and the Scots 'ch' in the same word.

As 'g in 'garter' As Scots 'ch'
Gaceta (gazette). General (general).
Gobierno (government). Gitano (gipsy).
Gusto (taste, pleasure). Gemelo (twin).
Guarda (guard). Género (genus).
Grueso (thick). Girasol (sunflower).

'H' is always silent.

'J' is always guttural; it resembles the Scots and German 'ch' in 'loch,' and the Spanish 'g' before 'e' and 'i.'

Jabón (soap).

Jardín (garden).

Joven (youth).

Jibia (cuttlefish).

Juego (game).

Jueze (Thursday).

Juez (judge).

Jamás (never).

Juefe (chief).

Judío (Jew).

Juego (game).

Julio (July).

Junio (June).

'Ll' sounds like the 'lli' of 'billiards' or the 'll' followed by 'y' in 'will you?' The Spanish word for

'horse'—'caballo'—might, in English, be written 'cabal'yo.'

'Que-' is pronounced as English 'kay,' spoken quickly and not drawled.

'Qui-' resembles the English word 'key,' also spoken quickly.

Que- QuiQuebrar (to break). Quieto (quiet).
Quedar (to stay). Química (chemistry).
Quemar (to burn). Quinto (fifth).

'R' must always be clearly sounded in Spanish; this is most important; it has practically the same phonetic value as the Scots 'r.'

'Rr' will need more care still, since it is, of course, a double Spanish 'r' and therefore doubly rolled. It must be distinguished from the single 'r' always in order to avoid confusion, as in the case of the words 'pero' and 'perro,' the former signifying 'but' and the latter 'dog.'

'N' may be identified with the 'ni' of 'onion' or the 'ny' of 'canyon'; the latter is written 'canon' in Spanish.

'Z' is pronounced like the English 'th' in 'think.'

Whenever diphthongs occur, each vowel contained in them must be clearly sounded.

The appended list of words should be repeated over and over again until the student is able to pronounce the whole number without hesitation and without undue effort.

Approximate English values are given in each case, and only those letters which are underlined are to be sounded.

Ciudad (town).

Minuto (minute).

Fiel (faithful).

In the following words the guttural (strongly aspirated) 'j' and 'g' are written as 'h' for convenience.

Ligero (light).

Jabón (soap).

Dijo (he said).

General (general).

Lee-hair-O.

Harm-bonnet.

Dee-ho.

Hen-air-alhambra.

In Spanish, in words of more than one syllable ending in a vowel, a diphthong, or 'n' or 's,' the tonic accent falls upon the penultimate, unless any other syllable bears a graphic accent. If the word ends in any consonant but 'n' or 's,' the tonic accent falls upon the ultimate.

Penultimate

Muchacho (boy).
Carmen (carmen).
Martes (Tuesday).
Inmediatamente (immediately).
Ventana (window).
Enfadado (angry).

Ultimate

Verdad (truth).

Mujer (woman).

Fuí (was).

Veloz (swift).

También (also).

Agitación¹ (aqitation).

Some words are accented elsewhere, as it has been explained, and, in this case, they always bear the graphic accent, as in the following—

Crónica (chronicle). Vehículo (vehicle). Científico (scientific). Hábito (costume). Idéntico (identical). Pícaro (rascal).

The Spanish 'r' and 'rr' are, as I have said, entitled to as much care as any other letter of the alphabet; the student would do well to practise the following lines over and over again in a loud voice in order to perfect his pronunciation of this sound—

"R con r, cigarro; ²
R con r, barril;
Rapidos corren los carros
Del ferrocarril."

¹ All words ending in '-ción' are accented upon the syllable '-ón.'

² Pronounce 'r' as 'ay-ray' (fate-rate) abruptly.

The translation runs-

"R with r, cigar; R with r, barrel; Rapid run the cars Of the railway."

In terminating this chapter I should like to urge the student to seek the aid and advice of any Spanish lady or gentleman whom he may encounter at any time or in any place; for, let it be agreed, half-an-hour's practice with a native will teach him more than he would learn from any book over a similar period.

Let him understand, too, that Spanish vowels are pure vowels, and that the majority of English ones are not pure, tending rather to resemble diphthongs. All the English vowels, therefore, in the phonetic equivalents previously given are to be spoken abruptly in order to lessen any danger of their being converted into diphthongs in the pronunciation of Spanish words.

Every vowel in Spanish, whether single or in combination to form diphthongs and triphthongs, is to be given its full value.

Pausa (pause).

Rey (king).

También (also).

Seáis (that you be).

Papa-ooze-arm.

Rate-eel.

Tar-m-bee-enemy.

Same-art-east.

CHAPTER III

THE FIRST LESSON

Spanish nouns are either masculine or feminine, and their respective definite articles are 'el' (masc.) and 'la' (fem.). The article 'lo' is used with adjectives and possessive pronouns having an abstract sense.

El libro = The book. La casa = The house.

Lo bueno = The good.

Lo mío = Mine (what belongs to me).

The definite article changes in the plural, thus-

El = Los. La = Las.

With very few exceptions, nouns ending in 'o' are masculine and those in 'a' feminine.

Masculine	Feminine
El tío (uncle).	La tía (aunt).
El hermano (brother).	La hermana (sister).
El cuchillo (knife).	La pluma (pen).
El cuadro (picture).	La mesa (table).

A few words ending in 'a ' are masculine, such as-

El poeta = Poet.

El hacha = Axe.

El alma = Soul.

El día = Day.

El tema = Exercise; etc.

Similarly, a word ending in 'o' may be feminine, such as 'la mano' (hand). This point is so striking, however, that those words which present such a peculiarity are easily committed to memory.

The best plan to adopt in learning the Spanish nouns is to repeat the article with each one, associating the one with the other. It should be noted, however, that nouns ending in '-ción' and 'd' are feminine.

> La ciudad = Town, city. La salud = Health.La lección = Lesson. La sociedad = Society. La pasión = Passion. La nación = Nation.

To form the plural of nouns an 's' is added, and the article is also subject to change. When the noun ends in a consonant 'es' is added.

Singular

El color (colour).

La lección (lesson).

La rosa (rose).

Plural

Las rosas (roses).

Las lecciones (lessons).

El amigo (friend).	Los amigos (Jriena).
La amiga (friend).	Las amigas (friends).
El hombre (man).	Los hombres (men).
La mujer (woman).	Las mujeres (women).
El libro (book).	Los libros (books).
La ciudad (town).	Las ciudades (towns).
El árbol (tree).	Los árboles (trees).
El color (colour).	Los colores (colours).

Note that whenever a substantive ends in 'z' this letter changes to 'c' before 'es' is added, as-

> Las luces. La luz (light).

Also, most nouns which end in a vowel carrying a graphic accent add 'es' to form the plural, as—

El rubí (ruby).

Los rubies.

The position of the graphic accent does not change.

Let us now commit to memory the present indicative tenses of the verbs 'to have' and 'to be.' These need some explanation, since there are two of each.

These are-

To have. (1). Haber. (2). Tener. To be. (1). Ser. (2). Estar.

For the present, let the following explanations suffice— 'Haber' is an auxiliary verb.

Yo ho estado = I have been.

'Tener' signifies 'to have' (to hold).

Yo tengo = I have (I hold).

'Ser' suggests the idea of a permanent state.

Yo soy soldado = I am a soldier.

'Estar' suggests a temporary state.

Yo estoy enfermo = I am ill.

The correct usage of the two verbs 'ser' and 'estar' is purely a matter of practice, and its difficulties are apparent even to natives of Spain. Explanations will be given, throughout this book, whenever the tenses of these verbs occur.

Present Indicative

	Haber	Tener	Ser	Estar
(I)	Yo he	Tengo	Soy	Estoy
(thou)	Tú has	Tienes	Eres	Estás
(he)	El ha	Tiene	Es	Está

(she)	Ella ha	Tiene	Es	Está
(we)	Nosotros hemos	Tenemos	Somos	Estamos
(you)	Vosotros habéis	Tenéis	Sois	Estais
(they)	Ellos han	Tienen	Son	Están
(they, f.	.) Ellas han	Tienen	Son	Están

A short vocabulary follows which will help the student to a better understanding of the phrases which succeed it, and which are to be considered as a foundation for the more comprehensive sentences in later chapters. Do not turn over any page until you have mastered all that is contained therein. All the work in this book is so graduated that no page should prove truly difficult if the past vocabularies and rules and exercises have been honestly treated.

VOCABULARY

Bueno	= good (masc.).	Buena	= good (fem.).
Buenos ¹	= good (masc.	Buenas	= good (fem.

Notes

The student will undoubtedly have remarked a few peculiarities in the foregoing exercise which will have led him to seek an explanation of them.

- (1). The various parts of a verb may be used without the pronoun, customary in English. Hence the Spaniard will say 'es' for 'he is' or 'she is' or 'it is' or 'you are' (with 'Vd.').
- (2). Some words precede the verb in Spanish where they follow it in English, as in 'No lo sé!' signifying 'I don't know it!' Here 'lo' (it) precedes the verb 'sé.' This order of words in the sentence must be closely studied by the beginner, for it bears greatly upon both clear understanding and intelligible expression. We shall notice the same - point later with respect to adjectives and the nouns they qualify.

- (3). 'De' signifies 'of.' Since it has a possessive signification, it becomes equivalent to the English ''s,' so that 'de mi padre' may be translated into English either 'of my father' or 'my father's.'
- (4). Notice the difference between 'esta' (without an accent) signifying 'this,' and 'esta' (with an accent) signifying 'is.'
- (5). It should be observed that Spanish adjectives agree, both in gender and number, with the nouns they accompany. The adjective 'good' used with a masculine singular noun is therefore bueno,' with a feminine singular noun 'buena,' with the plurals 'buenos' and 'buenas' according to gender.
- (6). In order to make a sentence interrogative the verb precedes the pronoun. There is, in such cases, no Spanish equivalent for our interrogative 'do?' and 'does?'
- (7). Take care over the pronunciation of words which are spelled alike yet differently accented; 'esta' and 'porque' are accented on the first syllable; 'esta' and 'porqué' on the final syllable. To accentuate wrongly is to be misunderstood, of course.

CHAPTER IV

THE SECOND LESSON

THE student ought on no account to commence the study of this lesson until he has mastered every rule and Spanish word and sentence in the previous chapter. By employing those odd moments, precious enough, which occur throughout the day in a careful revision and repetition of them, he will discover that language-learning is not so difficult as is popularly imagined, nor so irksome.

The possessive pronouns in Spanish are-

	English	Sing.	Plur.
1.	My	Mi	Mis
	Thy	Tu	\mathbf{T} us
	His (her, its)	\mathbf{Su}	Sus
	Our	Nuestro,-a	Nuestros,-as
	Your	Vuestro,-a	Vuestros,-as
	Their	Su	Sus
2.	Mine	Mío,-a	Míos,-as
	Thine	Tuyo,-a	Tuyos,-as
	His (her, its)	Suyo,-a	Suyos,-as
	Ours	Nuestro,-a	Nuestros,-as
	Yours	Vuestro,-a	Vuestros,-as
	Theirs	Suyo,-a	Suyos,-as

There are three conjugations of verbs, their infinitives ending respectively in '-ar,' '-er,' and '-ir.'

Their present indicative tenses are as follows-

Amar	Temer	Partir
(to love)	(to fear)	(to part, divide)
Yo amo	Temo	Parto
Tú amas	Temes	Partes
El ama	Teme	Parte
Nosotros amamos	Tememos	Partimos
Vosotros amais	Temeis	Partis
Ellos aman	Temen	Parten

Their past participles are-

Amado (loved). Temido (feared). Partido (divided).

The personal pronouns are—

	Nom.	Acc.	Dat.
I.	Yo.	Me.	Me (á mí).
Thou.	Tu.	Te (á ti).	Te (á tí).
He (it).	El.	Le, lo (á él).	Le (á él).
She (it).	Ella.	La (á ella).	Le (á ella).
It.	Ello.	Lo (á ello).	Lo (á ello).
We.	Nosotros.	Nos (á nosotros).	Nos (á nosotros).
You.	Vosotros.	Os (á vosotros).	Os (á vosotros).
They (masc.).	Ellos.	Los (a ellos).	Les (á ellos).
They (fem.).	Ellist.	Las (á ellas).	Les (á ellas).

The degrees of comparison of adjectives are formed thus -

Feiiz = Happy.

Mas feiiz que --- = Happier than ---.

Tan feliz como --- = As happy as ---.

Menos feliz que --- = Less happy than ---.

The superlatives are formed thus-

El mas feliz = The happiest. El menos feliz = The least happy.

Study carefully the following irregularities—

	Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
Good.	Bueno.	Mejor.	El mejor (óptimo).
Bad.	Malo.	Peor.	El peor (pésimo).
Large.	Grande.	Mayor.	El major (máximo).
Small.	Pequeño.	Menor.	El menor (mínimo).
High.	Alto.	Superior.	El superior (supremo).
Low.	Bajo.	Inferior.	El inferior (infimo).

Turning again to the verb, it should be noted that in general the word 'you' is translated by 'V.' (or 'Vd.' in some works), and is used with the third person singular of the verb-tense. The plural form 'Vs. '(or 'Vds.') is used with the third person plural, and is pronounced 'Oo-stedez,' accented on 'sted.'

All the sentences in the 'Conversational Matter' are intended to be read aloud, over and over again, with their necessary 'tone' and 'expression,' just as though a real conversation were taking place. Reading aloud is the best of all methods to adopt in order that one may become fluent. It is also, with reference to language-study, of wonderful assistance to the memory. Should the student desire written exercises as tests, he can employ the 'Conversational Matter' for this purpose. Dozens of other sentences can also be formed by substituting other words.

CHAPTER V

THE THIRD LESSON

HAVING acquired by this time a knowledge of the construction of the elementary sentence, it is advisable that the student should be able to give simple orders and commands by learning the 'imperative' mood of the most useful verbs.

Now, with reference to this point, the form of an order or command depends entirely upon the person to whom it is given, for Spanish, like most European languages, possesses more forms than in English.

Therefore, in giving an order in Spanish, one may employ either the second or third person. The second person singular with 'tu' is used solely amongst persons of close relationship and amongst friends of long standing.

Since it is a very familiar form of address, it would be extremely impolite and, in some cases, insulting, to employ it in any other connection. When addressing single individuals, therefore, the student must issue his command in the third person single of the imperative with 'Vd.' (Usted), and in the case of several individuals with 'Vds.'

Here we have the imperative forms of the four auxiliaries 'haber,' 'tener,' 'ser,' and 'estar.'

Haber	Tener
He! (Have thou!)	Ten!
Haya! (third person singular)	Tenga!
Hayamos! (Let us have!)	Tengamos!
Habed! (Have! plural)	Tened!
Hayan! (Let them have!)	Tengan!

Ser	${\it Estar}$
Sé! (Be thou!)	Está!
Sea!	Esté!
Seamos!	Estemos!
Sed!	Estad!
Sean!	Estén!

The regular forms are-

Amar	Temer	Partir
Ama! (Love	Teme! (Fear	Parte! (Divide
thou!)	thou!)	thou!)
Ame! (Let him love!) Tema!	Parta!
Amerios! (Let us lov	e!) Temamos!	Partamos!
Amad! (Love!)	Temed!	Partid!
Amen! (Let them low	e /) Teman!	Partan!

The most common irregular verbs form their imperatives thus—

Mostrar (to show) 1

Muestra! (tú) Show! (thou)
Muestre! Let him show! 2

Andar (to go, walk)

Anda! (tú) Go! (thou)
Ande! Let him go!

Poner (to put, place)

Pon! (tú) Put! (thou)
Ponga! Let him put!

Only the essential forms are given; that is to say, the second and third persons singular.

² Remember that this is the form used with 'Vd.' (Muestreme Vd. = Show (you) me!).

Traer (to bring)

Trae! (tú) Bring! (thou)
Traiga! Let him bring

Dormir (to sleep)

Duerme! (tú) Sleep! (thou)
Duerma! Let him sleep!

Pedir (to ask)

Pide! (tú)

Ask! (thou)

Pida!

Let him ask!

Venir (to come)

Ven! (tú) Come! (thou)
Venga! Let him come! 1

Ir (to go)

 Ve! (tú)
 Go! (thou)

 Vaya!
 Let him go!²

Decir (to say, tell)

Di! (tú)
Say, tell! (thou)
Diga!
Let him say, tell!³

Sentir (to feel)

Siente! (tú) Feel! (thou)
Sienta! Let him feel!

Hacer (to do, make)

Haz! (tú) Do! (thou)
Haga! Let him do!

^{&#}x27; 'Venga aqui!' means 'Come here!' (or 'Venga Vd. aqui!')

^{2 &#}x27;Vaya!' means 'Go!' or 'Go away!' (or 'Vaya Vd.!').

^{3 &#}x27;Digame Vd.!' means, Tell me! (you).

Dar (to give)

Da! (tú) Give! (thou)
Dé! Let him give!

These imperatives must be committed to memory, for, at the beginning, the student will have more need to ask and to demand than to employ any other manner of discourse. In the 'Conversational Matter' which follows will be found sufficient material whereupon to build up innumerable useful phrases for every-day work.

This imperative form of sentence is one of the simplest for the beginner, since usually it requires no answer. On the other hand, a sentence such as 'Donde se vende el mejor pan?' (Where is sold the best bread?) may give rise to a dozen replies.

CONVERSATIONAL MATTER

Tráigame Vd. un vaso de = Bring me a glass of vino! 1 wine!

Lleve Vd. mi equipaje à la = Take my luggage to the casa! house!

Vaya Vd. en mi cuarto! = Go into my room!

Suba Vd. á mi cuarto = Go up to my room!

(Subir = To ascend, go up.)

Marchemos pronto! = Let us go at once!

(Pronto = At once.)

Indíqueme Vd. la casa del = Show (indicate to) me Mr. Señor Gonzales! Gonzales' house!

Tenga Vd. la bondad de = Have the kindness to (Bondad = Kindness.)

¹ It is not always necessary to employ the word 'Vd.' in issuing a command, the imperative form itself being sufficient.

Déme Vd. un pedazo de = Give me a piece of bread! pan!

Muéstreme Vd. el periódico != Show me the newspaper!

Présteme unos lápices! = Lend me a few (some) pencils!

> (Prestar = To lend.)(Lapiz (on.) = Pencil.)

= Here is one, sir. Aquí está uno, Señor = Many thanks! Muchas gracias! 1

Tengamos paciencia! = Let us have patience!

Búsquelo! = Look for it!

> (Buscar = To seek, look for.)(Lo = It; or 'la' if feminine.)

= Take them! (Carry them!) Llévele Vd.! Condúzcame Vd. á este = Conduct me to this point! (place). punto! = Let us go in ! Entremos!

(Entrar = To enter.)

Súbame Vd. un poco de = Bring me up a little wood! leña!

(Subir = To ascend, to bring up.)

Dígame Vd. su nombre! = Tell me your name! Hábleme Vd. de su vida! 2 = Tell me about your life!

² Here the pronoun 'su' signifies 'your,' but it may mean 'his' or 'her,' in which case one must make the sense clearer by the addition of explanatory words, thus-

Su vida de Vd.! = Your life! (the life of you). Su vida de el! = His life! (the life of him).
Su vida de ella! = Her life! (the life of her).

Déme Vd. con qué hacer = Give me something to fuego! make a fire!

(Con qué = Equivalent to 'that with which' or 'with what.')

(Fuego = Fire.)

Ponga Vd. mi baúl en el = Put my trunk in the rincón! corner!

Hablemos ahora de la = Let us talk now about (of) guerra! the war!

(Ahora = Now.)(Guerra = War.)

Enséñeme Vd. en donde se = Show (teach) me where is encuentra la llave! found the key!

Vamos ahora al comedor! = Let us go now into the dining-room!

Vayan Vds. á la iglesia! = Go (plur.) to church!

Limpie Vd. esta taza! = Clean this cup!

(Limpiar = To clean.)

Oiga Vd.! = Listen!

Ofgame Vd.! = Listen to me!
Ofgale Vd.! = Listen to him!

Sirvase Vd. darme un = Please (kindly) give me a alfiler! pin!

(Servir = To serve. It may be used as above, signifying 'Will you please——!')

Cuide Vd.! = Take care!

(Cuidar = To take care, to mind.)

Cierre Vd. la puerta! = Shut the door!
Cierre Vd. la ventana! = Shut the window!

(Cerrar = To shut.)

Ayúdeme Vd. á—^1 = Help me to — !
                (Ayudar = To help.)
Encienda Vd. la lámpara! = Light the lamp!
               (Encender = To light.)
               (L\acute{a}mpara = Lamp.)
No deje Vd. nada en la = Leave nothing on the mesa!
                 (Dejar = To leave.)
                 (Nada = Nothing.)
                 (En = In or on.)
Sírvase Vd. darme una = Please give me a spoon!
  cuchara!
Páseme Vd. el azúcar! = Pass me the sugar!
                (Pasar = To pass.)^2
Páseme Vd. la sal!
                       = Pass me the salt!
Páseme Vd. la carne, por = Pass me the meat.
  favor!
                            please!
         (Carne = Meat.)
         (Por favor = Please or By favour.)
Dénos Vd. patatas!
                       = Give us potatoes!
                  = Go (thou) to bed!
Anda á acostarte!
Ande Vd. \acute{a} acostarle! ^3 = Go (you) to bed!
Anden Vds. á acostarles! = Go (you, plur.) to bed!
Habla Vd. inglés?
                      = Do you speak English?
Hable Vd. español \( = \text{Speak Spanish!}
                 = Excuse me!
Dispense Vd.!
         (Dispensar = To dispense, to excuse.)

Follow on with an infinitive.

² Not to be confused with 'pasear' (to walk).

³ Refer to the Second Lesson for the use of 'le.'

Créame Vd. Don Pedro, no = Believe me, Don Pedro, tengo nada! I have nothing!

(Creer (two syllables) = To believe.)
(Literally 'Not have nothing.')

Digame Vd. que hora es! = Tell me what hour it is!

Sí, señor; es la una = It is one o'clock.

Son las cinco! = It is five o'clock!

Son las ocho y medio! = It is half-past eight!

(Literally 'eight and half.')

Son las nueve y cuarto! = It is a quarter past nine! Eran 1 las seis menos = It was twenty past six! veinte!

(Menos = Less.)
(Literally 'Six less twenty.')

Dígame Vd. si es tarde! = Tell me if it is late!

Con mucho gusto, señor; = With much pleasure, no es tarde; al contrario es muy temprano!² sir, it's not late; on the contrary, it's very early!

Esté Vd. persuadido que es = Be certain that it is so, así, señor! sir!

(Persuadido = Persuaded, etc.)

Quien 3 tiene mi libro? = Who has my book?

Lo tengo = I have it.

Que 3 tiene Vd.? = What have you?

Tengo la flor que ³ Vd. me = I have the flower which ha dado (that) you have given me.

Note the contraction of 'á el' into 'al' (to the, at the).

³ Study these relative and interrogative pronouns.

Cuál es su nombre ? = What is your name ?
Cómo se llama Vd. ? = How are you called ?
(Llamar = To call.)
(Literally 'How yourself call you?')

Me llamo Antonio = I am called Antonio.

(Literally 'Myself I call Antonio.')

Aquí está el muchacho = Here is the boy whose cuyo 1 padre no tiene father has no money.

dinero

(Cuyo (masc.) = Whose, of whom. The feminine is 'cuya'; the plurals are 'cuyos and 'cuyas.')

De quién ¹ es este caballo ? = Whose horse is this ?
Es el caballo de aquel sol- = It is that soldier's horse.
dado

(De quién = Of whom, whose.) (Aquel = That.—Fem. 'aquella.')

Ponga Vd. una botella de = Put a bottle of wine on vino en la mesa! the table!

La quiere Vd. ahora? = Do you want it now?

(La = It, agreeing with 'botella,' feminine.)
(Querer = To want, wish. Note the change in spelling.)

Si, la quiero inmediata- = Yes, I want it immemente! diately!

Mozo, tráigame otra cosa! = Waiter, bring me something else!

(Mozo = Waiter.) (Otra cosa = Other thing.) (Literally 'Waiter, bring me other thing!')

No tome Vd. eso! = D

= Don't take this!

(Tomar = To take.) (Eso or Esto = This, neuter.)

Qué hay?

= What is there?

Hay dos perros en el jardin = There are two dogs in the garden.

(Hay = There is, there are.)

Déme Vd. una tajada de = Give me a slice of melon!

(Tajada = Slice.)

Tráiganos Vd. la lista! = Bring us the list!
Tráigame Vd. cerveza! = Bring me beer!

Cuánto cuesta ? 2 = How much does it cost ?

(Costar = To cost. Note the change.)

Todo el mundo es muy = Everybody is very kind.

(Todo el mundo 3 = Everybody; All the world.)

Estoy en Londres

= I am in London.

Voy á Paris

= I am going (I go) to Paris.

(Note the two prepositions.)

He visto á ⁴ su padre de Vd. = I have seen your father.

Los héroes honran á su = Heroes honour their patria country.

^{2 &#}x27;It' is often omitted.

^{*} French 'Tout le monde.'

⁴ In Spanish, whenever the direct object is a person, the active verb is usually followed by ' \(\bar{a}.\)'

Fué alabado por el rey = He was praised by the king.

(Alabar = To praise.)(Fué = He was.)

Now learn by heart the following lines, which are amusing, since they may be repeated over and over again and still interest.

Las dos de la noche eran
Cuando sentí ruido en casa.
Subo la escalera ansiosa;
Saco la brillante espada.
Toda la casa registro,
Y en ella no encuentro nada.
Y por ser cosa curiosa
Voy á volver á contarla.
Las dos de la noche eran
Cuando sentí ruido en casa, etc., etc.

Translation

Two o'clock in the night (it) was
When (I) heard a noise in (the) house.
(I) mount the staircase anxious;
(I) draw out the brilliant sword.
All the house (the whole house) I inspect,
And in it (I) meet nothing.
And for (its) being a curious thing
I am going to relate it to you again.
Two o'clock, etc.

'Volver' signifies 'to turn, to return'; when used ir conjunction with another verb it indicates repetition 'Subir' signifies 'to ascend, to go up.'

- 'Sacar' means 'to extract, to take out.'
- 'Registrar' may mean either 'to survey, inspect, examine,' or 'to control, register.'
- 'Encontrar' means 'to meet.' Notice the change, in the present, to 'encuentro.'
- 'Contar' signifies 'to relate, to tell.'
- 'Sentir' may mean either 'to feel' or 'to hear,' and also 'to taste.'

The student must be prepared to encounter all manner of suffixes to nouns, indicating or suggesting proportion, both diminution and augmentation, love, contempt, tenderness, etc. These may be set under two headings, diminution and augmentation.

The feminine is formed by the addition of 'a.'

The principal forms are-

Diminutives	Augmentatives
-ito	-on
-ico	-azo
-itico	-ote
-illo	-achon
-uelo	-acho
-ucho
-cito, ececito
-zuelo, etc.

Examples

Perro	= Dog.	Perron =	=	$Big\ dog.$
Capa	= Cloak, cape.	Capote =	==	Big cape.
Pié	= Foot.	Piececito :	_	Dear little foot.
Chico 1	= Little boy.			Nice little boy.
\mathbf{Flor}	= Flower.			Little flower.

Also 'little,' 'small.'

This habitual use of diminutives and augmentatives by the Spanish has actually given birth to new words with often a changed meaning.

Note carefully the following-

Original	d Word Derived Word
Puño =	The fist.1	Puñetazo	= A punch, a blow with
	•		the fist.
Paño =	Cloth.	Pañuelo	= Handkerchief.
Cera =	Wax	Cerilla	= Match (for lighting).
Palo =	Stick.	Palillo	== Small stick, or tooth-pick.

Proper names may also receive these suffixes, often suggestive of affection.

Juan (John) becomes 'Juanito.' Luisa (Loutsa) becomes 'Luisita.'

CHAPTER VI

THE FOURTH LESSON

LET us now examine the future tense of the regular verbs and the regular and irregular participles. The student is advised at this point to study particularly the participal changes.

Future 1

Amar (to love)	Temer (to fear)	Partir (to part, divide)
Amaré	Temeré	Partiré
Amarás	Temerás	Partirás
Amará	Temerá	Partirá
Amaremos	Temeremos	Partiremos
Amaréis	Temeréis	Partiréis
Amarán	Temerán	Partirán

Participles (Regular and Irregular)

Infinitive	Present Part	Past Pari
Amar (to love)	Amando (loving)	Amado (loved)
Temer (to fear)	Temiendo (fearing)	Temido (feared)
Partir (to part, divide)	Partiendo (dividing)	Partido (divided)
Haber (to have)	Habiendo (having)	Habida (had)
Tener (to have)	Teniendo (having)	Tenido (had)
Ser (to be)	Siendo (being)	Sido (been)
Estar (to be)	Estando (being)	Estado (been)
Llamar (to call)	Llamando (calling)	Llamado (called)
Decir (to say)	Deciendo (saying)	Dicho (said)
Saber (to know)	Sabiendo (knowing)	Sabido (known)
Gustar (to taste, like)	Gustando (tasting,	Gustado (tasted, liked)
•	liking)
Hablar (to speak)	Hablando (speaking)	Hablado (spoken)
Ir (to go)	Yendo (going)	Ido (gone)
Venir (to come)	Veniendo (coming)	Venido (came)
Hacer (to do)	Haciendo (doing)	Hecho (done)
Querer (to wish, love)	Queriendo (wishing)	Querido (wished)
Aprender (to learn)	Aprendiendo(learning	Aprendido (learned)
Ver (to see)	Viendo (seeing)	Visto (seen)

¹ Where there is no graphic accent, the stress falls naturally upon the penultimate; e.g., the second 'e' of 'temeremos' and the 'e' of 'amaremos' and 'partiremos.'

Estudiar (to study)	Estudiando (studying)	Estudiado (studied)
Sentir (to feel, perceive)	Sintiendo (feeling)	Sentido (felt)
Dar (to give)	Dando (giving)	Dado (given)
Traer (to bring)	Trayendo (bringing)	Traido (brought)
Escriber (to write)	Escribiendo (writing)	Escrito (written)
Pronunciar (to pro-	Pronunciando (pro-	Pronunciado (pronounce)	nouncing)	nounced)
Desear (to desire)	Deseando (desiring)	Descado (desired)
Mandar (to send)	Mandando (sending)	Mandado (sent)
Poder (to be able)	Pudiendo (being able)	Podido (been able)
Reciber (to receive)	Recebiendo (receiving)	Recibido (received)
Poner (to put)	Poniendo (putting)	Puesto (put)
Morir (to die)	Muriendo (dying)	Muerto (dead)
Pedir (to ask)	Pidiendo (asking)	Pedido (asked)
Dormir (to sleep)	Durmiendo (sleeping)	Dormido (slept)

The futures of the verbs 'haber,' 'tener,' 'ser,' and 'estar' are as follows—

Future

Haber	Tener	Ser	Estar
Habré	${f Tendr\'e}$	Seré	Estaré
Habrás	Tendrás	Serás	Estarás
Habrá	Tendrá	Será	Estará
Habremos	Tendremos	Seremos	Estaremos
Habréis	Tendréis	Seréis	Estaréis
Habrán	Tendrán	Serán	Estarán

It will be remarked that a distinct similarity exists between the future-tense endings of all Spanish verbs. Let us study the future of a few of the most common irregular verbs.

Future

Ir (to go)	Venir (to come)	Poder (to be able)
Îré	Vendré	Podré
Irás	Vendrás	Podrás
Irá	Vendrá	Podrá
Iremos	Vendremos	Podremos
Iréis	Vendréis	Podréis
Trán	Vendran	Podrán

Dar (to give)	Decir (to say)	Hacer (to do, make)
Daré	Diré	Haré
Darás	Dirás	Harás
Dará	Dirá	Hará
Daremos	Diremos	Haremos
Daréis	Diréis	Haréis
Darán	Dirán	Harán

The student must always be prepared for slight changes in the forms of some verbs. Although the changes are, in most cases, so slight that the word may be recognised in the text, it is essential that the beginner should become familiar with them in order to be able to employ them readily in conversation. However simple a word may appear, as much care must be taken in learning it as over any difficult one.

These changes in the form of certain parts only of the verb will be found to be quite reasonable, as the following examples will show.

The main point to be remembered is that the final consonant sound of the stem of a verb must not change, whatever is added to it as a suffix.

"Tocar' means 'to touch,' and the stem is 'toc.'

This 'c' sound (as in 'cat') must remain throughout the conjugation. In the present we have 'toco,' meaning 'I touch.'

Now, in order to form the 'past definite' (I touched) it is necessary to suffix '-é,' but if this vowel follows 'c' its sound is changed, and it becomes equivalent to English 'th.' This must not be, so we substitute 'qu' for the 'c' and the stem-consonant retains its phonetic value. The word now becomes 'toqué' (I touched). Practice will soon show the student where these euphonic changes become necessary.

As with 'c,' so with 'g.'

'Pagar' means 'to pay.' The present is 'pago,' the 'past definite' 'pagué.'

Verbs which end in '-cer' and 'cir' in the infinitive have another change. The 'c' becomes 'z' before 'a' and 'o.' Note the present indicative of the verb 'vencer' (to vanquish)—

Venzo = I vanquish.
Vences = Thou vanquishest.
Vence = He vanquishes.
Vencéis = You vanquish.
Vencéis = You vanquish

Vencéis = You vanquish. Vencen = They vanquish.

Here the consonant-sound preceding the suffix is the same throughout.

The same rule must be noted in respect to verbs in '-ger.' Since this 'g' is guttural, what will happen when the suffix is 'o'? Some sound which is guttural before 'o' must be substituted, since 'go' is pronounced almost as in English. Here, then, we write and pronounce 'jo.'

'Coger' means 'to gather.' The present indicative is-

Cojo = I gather.
Coges = Thou gatherest.
Coje = He gathers.
Cogemos = We gather.
Cogéis = You gather.
Cogen = We gather.

Verbs in '-gir' also follow the rule of euphony. Verbs in '-guir' drop the 'u' before 'a' and 'o,' otherwise 'guio' (as English 'gwo'), which is false.

The first person of the present indicative of the verb 'distinguir' is—Distingo = I distinguish.

The remaining forms retain the 'u' after 'g.'

So with verbs terminating in '-quir.' 'Qu' becomes 'c' before 'a' and 'o.'

'Delinquir' signifies 'to transgress, to offend.'

Delinco.

Delinques.

Delinque, etc.

The euphonic value of 'c' followed by 'o' is equal to that of 'qu' followed by 'e.'

Then, also, there exist interesting changes in the stem itself.

The verb 'pensar' (to think) is conjugated in the present, thus—

Yo pienso Tu piensas El piensa Nosotros pensamos Vosotros pensáis

Ellos piensan

Note the change from 'pen-' to 'pien-' in some cases.

A few others (irregular) are—

Present Tense

Poder (to be able)	Valer (to be worth)	Decir (to say)
Puedo	Valgo	Digo
Puedes	Vales	Dices
\mathbf{Puede}	\mathbf{Vale}	Dice
Podemos	Valemos	Decimos
Podéis	Valéis	Decís

Pone Ponemos Ponéis Ponen Sentir (to feel, p Siento Sientes Siente	Quiere Queremos Queréis Quieren perceive) Ver V	Sabe Sabemos Sabéis Saben (to see) Teo Tes

Some verbs, let it be noted, change their 'c' to 'zc,' or simply 'z,' in the present tense.

Aducir (to adduce) forms 'aduzco.'

Abastecer (to supply, provide) forms 'abastezco.'

Cocer (to cook) forms 'cuezo.'

Practice, however, will overcome all these difficulties, and, as a help, frequent notes will be given in future texts for the student's guidance.

VOCABULARY

Un	= a.	Unos	=	some, a few.

Y este joven, que necesita?	= And this youth, what does he want?

¹ The suffix '-isimo' is an augmentative and signifies 'very, very.'

² 'Para' (for, in order to) is used in such cases when a reason of some kind follows. If the English 'to' signifies 'in order to,' then 'para' should be used.

No lo dice! = He doesn't say. Preguntele, por favor! = Ask him, please! Dice que ha perdido su = He says that he has lost his coat! levita Piensa talvez que yo la = He thinks perhaps that I have it. tengo Dice que la ha visto en su = He says he has seen it in cuarto de Vd. your room. CHAPTER VII

THE FIFTH LESSON

The student will have remarked that, up to the present point, I have written more of the verb than of any other part of speech. I have done this intentionally, for the verb is, in the majority of languages, the most troublesome to the beginner. There are so many forms, due to the addition of various suffixes, that one is apt to become confused at first. Yet I would assure my readers that, if they but commit to memory the whole of the tenses of seven verbs ('haber,' 'tener,' 'ser,' 'estar,' 'amar,' 'temer,' and 'partir')—a matter of a few hours only—they will have laid a solid foundation upon which to build their future work. All the Futures and Conditionals resemble each other; so do some other tenses.

The indolent and half-hearted worker will accomplish very little; I appeal only to those who desire to experience the pleasure and educational superiority over others that a good knowledge of a foreign tongue can give.

The Imperfect Tense

Tener (to have)
Tenía (I had, was having)
Tenías
Tenía
Teníamos
Teníais ¹
Tenían

 $^{^{1}\ \}mathrm{Take}\ \mathrm{care}\ \mathrm{to}\ \mathrm{pronounce}\ \mathrm{the}\ \mathrm{ending}$ '-iais' as in English 'bee-ice').

Ser (to be)Estar (to be)Era (I was)Estaba (I was)ErasEstabasEraEstabaEramosEstábamosEraisEstábaisEranEstában

There are many resemblances to be observed in the above forms.

Regular Forms

Partir (to part, divide) Amar (to love) Temer (to fear) Amaba (I was loving). Temia (I was fearing). Partia (I was parting). Partías. Amabas. Temias. Temia. Partia. Amaba. Partiamos. Temíamos. Amábamos. Partiais. Temíais. Amábais. Temian. Partian. Amában.

Here, again, the resemblances are noticeable in the suffixes; the 'b' in regular verbs whose infinitives end in '—ar' is outstanding.

The forms of the imperfect of irregular verbs are not at all difficult, since they differ but little from the regular forms.

- 'Ir' (to go) becomes 'iba,' etc.
- 'Venir' (to come) becomes 'venía,' etc.
- 'Saber' (to know) becomes 'sabía,' etc.
- 'Sentir' (to feel, perceive) becomes 'sentía,' etc.
- 'Poner' (to put, place) becomes 'ponía,' etc.
- 'Ver' (to see) becomes 'veía,' etc.
- 'Hacer' (to do, make) becomes 'hacía,' etc.
- 'Dar' (to give) becomes 'daba,' etc.
- 'Decir' (to say, tell) becomes 'decia,' etc.

The reader will require but little more than that which I have given concerning the imperfect form of the indicative; the rest may be gained by continual practice.

Seríais

Serían

The conditional form is quite as easily acquired if we memorise the following suffixes—

-ía -ías

-ía

-íamos

-íais

-ían

Conditional Mood

Tener (to have) Haber (to have) Tendría (I should have) Habría (I should have) Tendrías Habrias Habría Tendría Tendríamos Habríamos Tendríais Habriais Tendrían Habrian Estar (to be) Ser (to be) Estaría (I should be) Sería (I should be) Serías Estarías Estaría Sería Seríamos Estaríamos

The conditional forms of the regular and irregular verbs all have the same suffixes.

Estaríais

Estarían

Amar (to love)	Temer (to fear)	Partir (to part, divide)
Amaría	Temería	Partiría
(I should love).	(I should fear).	(I should part).

Amaría.	Temería	Partiría.
Amaríamos.	Temeriamos.	Partiriamos.
Amaríais.	Temeríais.	Partiríais.
Amarian.	Temerian.	Partirían.

Notice particularly that, both in the future and conditional forms of all verbs, the final 'r' of the infinitive remains, even though, in some instances, its preceding vowel be missing. By this 'r' may they be recognised in reading and in conversation.

The most difficult form—demanding great care—of the Spanish verb is the Past Definite or Preterite tense, yet one's task is lightened on account of the similarities which exist, as in other tenses, among them.

Past Definite Tense

Haber	Tener

The three regular forms are-

Amar	Temer	Partir
Amé	Temí	Partí
Amaste	Temiste	Partiste
Amó	Temió	Partió
Amámos	Temimos	Partimos
Amásteis	Temisteis	Partisteis
Amaron	Temieron	Partieron

The past definite of the most used irregular verbs will be found to be not altogether unlike the forms just given.

The best method to employ in learning the various tenses of irregular verbs is that of reading them over aloud, in sets. Take the present tenses of several verbs, and recite them over and over again at intervals throughout the day. Then take the imperfect tenses, then others. By this means one distinguishes the differences and similarities between the separate sets, and between these and the regular forms. The latter ought, on the other hand, to be learned individually throughout their conjugations, since, as I have explained, they form a basis upon which to build. Now, in order to vary the work, let us learn by heart—'de memoria,' as the Spanish say, this little poem; it contains some useful constructions—

Pobre flor que ayer naciste, Guan temprana fué tu suerte! Al primer paso que diste Te encontraste con la muerte.

El llevarte es cosa triste; El dejarte es cosa fuerte; El dejarte con la vida Es dejarte con la muerte.

The translation runs—

Poor flower that wast born yesterday, How soon came (was) thy fate! At the first step thou tooke t (gavest) Thou metst with death.

(The) Taking thee away is a sad thing;

(The) Leaving thee is a strong (noble) thing;

(The) Leaving thee with life
Is to leave thee with death.2

There are three examples of the Past Definite in these lines, namely—

- 'Naciste,' from 'nacer' (to be born).
- 'Diste,' from 'dar' (to give).
- 'Te encontraste con,' from 'encontrarse con' (to meet with).

¹ Note that the pronoun becomes a suffix to an infinitive; likewise to a present participle and an imperative (used affirmatively).

Whether one left the flower or picked it, it must die in the end.

There are also two examples of infinitives used substantively—

- (1) 'El dejar' (the leaving).
 'El dejarte' (the leaving thee).
- (2) 'El llevar' (the taking away).

 'El llevarte' (the taking thee away).
- 'Cuan' is an adverb signifying 'how,' as above.

'Primero' means 'first'; the feminine form is 'primera'; the plural 'primeros, primeras.' The final vowel may sometimes be omitted before a substantive.

The verb 'to meet with' (encontrar-se con) is a reflexive verb. It happens that a verb may be reflexive in one language and not in another. In English one might well be understood if one omitted the reflexive pronoun in certain cases, as, 'I am washing myself' or 'I am washing.' In Spanish, however, one is not so free to omit the pronoun from fear of being misunderstood. See how the reflexive verb is conjugated, and let us take, as an example, another verb commonly used.

Pasearse (to walk)

Yo me paseo = I walk.

Tú te paseas = thou walkest.

El se pasea = he walks.

Nosotros nos paseamos = we walk.

Vosotros os paseáis = you walk.

Ellos se pasean = they walk.

The Imperfect would be, 'Yo me paseaba,' etc.

The Past Definite, 'Yo me paseé,' etc.

The Future, 'Yo me pasearé,' etc.

The Conditional, 'Yo me pasearía,' etc.

The Imperative, 'Paséate!' (Go thou for a walk!)

The Imperative, 'Paséese Vd.!' (Go you for a walk!)
The Spanish language, as I have said in Lesson Three, is rich in suffixes.

FURTHER EXAMPLES

Un niño muy pequeño es = A very small child is a pequeñito ¹ little one (mite, etc.).

Un libro pequeño es un = A little book is a booklet. librito

Una estatua baja es una = A low (small) statue is a estatuita statuette.

Una mujer muy baja es una = A very low (short) woman mujercita is a little woman.

Un joven de poca edad es un = A youth of little age is a jovencito youngster.

Un árbol de poca altura es = A tree of little height is un arbolillo a sapling, etc.

Hijica de mi alma! = Little daughter of my heart.²

Now I intend to tell a short story, first in English in order that you may realise its purport, and afterwards in Spanish. Endeavour by means of the English rendering to establish the idea of the story in your mind without special attention to the English words employed; but pay strict attention to every Spanish word.

English Version

Louis XIV. asked one of his courtiers if he knew the Castillian tongue.

"No, sir," replied the gentleman, "but I'll learn it." He worked with much careful attention (application) in order to learn the language quickly, because he thought that the king had the intention of naming (nominating) him ambassador in the court of Spain, and after a few months he went to tell the monarch that, now already, he knew the Castillian tongue.

¹ Both nouns and adjectives may take these suffixes. ² Literally 'soul'; 'el corazón' is 'heart.'

"Very well," replied the king to him, "and I give you my congratulation, for you will be able to read 'Don Quijote' in the original."

The Spanish version runs as follows-

Luis XIV. preguntó á uno de sus cortesanos "si sabía el castellano?"

"No, Señor," respondió el caballero, "pero lo aprenderé."

Trabajó con mucho esmero para aprender pronto aquel idioma, porque pensaba que el rey tenía intención de nombrarle embajador en la corte de España, y después de unos meses fué á decir al monarca que ahora ya sabía el castellano.

"Muy bien," le respondió el rey, "y le doy á Vd. la enhorabuena, pues podrá leer el 'Don Quijote' en el original."

Here is another anecdote-

"I don't know how to get rid of Augustus; every day he comes to ask me for money."

"And dost thou give him some?"

"No, but his presence inconveniences me."

"Do you wish him not to come again?—Lend him five 'duros' (dollars)."

The Spanish is rendered thus—

"No sé cómo librarme de Agustín; todos los días viene á pedirme dinero."

^{1 &#}x27;Dar la enhorabuena' means 'to congratulate'; (also 'Dar el parabién').

- "Y tú se lo das?"
- "No, pero me incomoda su presencia."
- "Quieres no volverlo á ver ?-Préstale cinco duros!" The above passages, and, indeed, every other anecdote and story that may henceforth appear, should be recited aloud, not once, but many times; and such recitation must not be monotonous, but full of expression. Neither must they be recited until the idea of the whole is understood. nor without an increased mobility of the organs of speech. Speak slowly and deliberately, and, above all things, with perfect confidence.

Notes to above passages

- 1. 'Preguntó á.' The verb 'preguntar' (to ask) requires the preposition 'a' (to ask to ____).
- 'Ya' signifies 'already.'
- Notice the positions of the various pronouns. It is far better to learn their use and position in connected texts than to memorise them as tabulated parts of speech.
- 4. 'Pues' in the first extract may be translated 'for' or 'since' or 'because.'

 - This is its usual signification.
- 'Librarme' means 'to free myself,' and 'pedirme' means 'to 5. ask me for ' or ' to beg me.'
- 6. 'Se' in 'y tú se lo das?' needs an explanation. Whenever two pronouns, both of the third person, one dative and the other accusative, come together in the same phrase, the pronoun in the dative changes into 'se,' so that, word for word, the phrase under observation may be translated thus-tu = thou.

Y = and.

se = to him (dative instead of 'le').
lo = it (referring to 'money').

das = givest.

Remember that 'se' is a pronoun only of the third person, and study the following—

Yo se lo dije = I said it to her (him, them).
Yo se lo lei = I read it to him (her, them).
Yo se lo doy = I give it to them (him, her).

Since 'Vd.' is also used with the third person it is likewise so affected. 'Se lo diré à Vd. esta tarde!' (I will tell it you this evening).

Now, here is a short poem which it would be wise on the student's part to commit to memory: indeed, all the extracts, stories, and poems, together with the 'Conversational Matter,' should be read aloud, for this is the only course to adopt if the student wishes to become fluent in the language. I do not mean that one should learn them as a task, but rather as a pleasure, not by effort and strained concentration, but by familiarity, by reading them aloud with expression over and over again during a long period. In this manner impressions may be better preserved.

El dos de Mayo 1

Éste es el dia en que, con voz tirana, "Ya sois esclavos," la Ambición gritó. Y el noble pueblo que lo oyó indignado— "Muertos, sí," dijo, "pero esclavos, no."

The translation of the above runs-

This is the day in which, with tyrant voice, "Already (now) you are slaves," Ambition cried. And the noble people that heard it, indignant—"Dead, yes," it said, "but slaves, no!"

^{1 &#}x27;The Second of May,' by Arriaza.

Notes

- 1. Accentuate 'éste' on the first syllable.
- 2. 'Voz' (voice) is feminine.
- 3. 'Sois' is second person plural of 'ser.'
- 4. The word 'Ambición' is significant. It is an allusion to Napoleon and to the French domination in Madrid.
- 5. 'Pueblo' meaning 'a people,' 'a race,' is, of course, singulars 'Muertos' and 'esclavos' refer to the plurality of the citizens.
- 6. Read this verse slowly and with expression.

CHAPTER VIII

THE SIXTH LESSON

LET me now tell you another story, first in English in order that you may seize the idea of the whole, and then in Spanish so that the text may convey the same idea to your mind. When once you understand an idea that is to be expressed, endeavour to forget temporarily the words and phrases of the English version and concentrate upon the Spanish. This is the best way to learn.

A prince, wishing to amuse himself at the expense of one of his courtesans whom he had employed in different embassies, told him one day that with his big eyes and long neck he seemed, at the same time, like an owl and a goose.

"I do not know, Sir," replied to him the gentleman, with much dignity, "to whom or to what (I) look like (resemble, appear), but I know very well that I had many times the honour to represent Your Majesty in various foreign courts."

Here is the same story told in Spanish-

Un principe, queriendo divertirse á costa de uno de sus cortesanos á quien había empleado en diferentes embajadas, le dijo un día que con sus grandes ojos y largo cuello se parecía á la vez á un buho y á un ganso.

"Yo no sé, Señor," le respondió el caballero con mucha dignidad, "á quien ó á que me parezco, pero sé muy bien que tuve muchas veces el honor de representar Vuestra Majesdad (V. M.) en varias cortes extranjeras." The student will demand explanations to some of the constructions in the above. He will probably have remarked certain repetitions of the preposition 'á' where he would not have expected them. With some Spanish verbs this 'á' is necessary. In English we used the phrase 'to meet a companion'; in Spanish, however, we say 'Encontrar á un campañero' (meet to a companion).

The following examples should be noted particularly—

Spanish

Amar á una persona Adorar á Dios

Aprender á escribir Compelar á otro

Cautivar á los alemanes

Convidar á alguno Enseñar á un discípulo

Encontrar á un amigo Obedecer á alguno Obligar á una persona

Preguntar algo á una persona

Salvar á uno la vida

English

= To love a person.

= To adore God.

= To learn to write.

= To compel another.

= To capture the Germans.

= To invite someone.

= To teach a pupil.

= To meet a friend.

= To obey someone.

= To compel a person.

= To ask something of someone.

= To save someone's life.

There are many such verbs requiring this 'a.' Some others are—

Molestar $\hat{a} = To molest, trouble.$

Nombrar á = To nominate.

Pagar \hat{a} = To pay. Prestar \hat{a} = To lend.

Reconecer á = To recognise.

Reconvenir a = To reprove. Acercerse a = To approach.

Maldecir á = To curse (someone).

There are also other verbs with which other prepositions are employed, such as 'de,' 'con,' and 'en' (in English 'of,' 'with,' and 'in.') Here are a few noteworthy examples—

English Spanish Olvidarse de¹ = To forget. Lamentarse de¹ = To bewail. = To enjoy, rejoice in. Gozar de = To undertake. Encargarse de¹ = To emulate--. Emular con-== To hate----. Detestar de-= To be careless of, to disregard. Descuidarse de¹ = To cease. Dejarse de¹ = To make a hobby of. Afanarse en¹ = To insist on. Insistir en = To think upon. Meditar en = To begin with. Principiar en = To reflect on. Reflexionar en = To divide into. Repartir en = To resolve (itself) into. Resolverse en¹ = To avenge oneself on. Vengarse en¹ = To marry (oneself with). Casarse con¹ Batirse con una persona¹ = To fight a person. = To meet with someone. Dar con alguno = To cease eating (to eat). Cesar de comer = To know by sight. Conocer de vista = To dispose of. Disponer de Vindicarse de----1 = To avenge---. = To abstain from----. Abstenerse de¹

Let us now study the changes in the subjunctive and other forms of the principal irregular verbs.

These need not be memorised all at once, for by continually repeating them in phrases, sentences, stories, and poems, one becomes accustomed to their correct usage; they should, however, be read over aloud at intervals and also be used for reference. Never let any word pass without understanding its real signification.

Only those tenses which exhibit changes will be given.

Quien era el médico del rey?	Who was the king's physician?
El médico del rey era inglés = y muy sabio	The king's physician was English and very clever.
Quién es su hermana ?1 =	Who is her (his) sister?
Su hermana es actriz en un =	Her (his) sister is an teatro de Madrid	actress in a Madrid theatre.

^{1 &#}x27;De él' or 'De ella' understood.

Cuando mi tío estuviere en = When my uncle is at el baile, yo estaré en el the dance, I shall be teatro at the theatre.

Note.—'Cuando' is usually followed by the subjunctive, especially when it signifies 'whenever.' Since, here, the idea is a future one, the future tense must be used. 'Whenever my uncle will be (subj.) at the dance (ball), I shall be (indic.) at the theatre.'

Qué hay de nuevo, amigo? = What is the news, friend?

Nada que yo sepa!

= Nothing that I know of.

(Literally 'What is there of new?')
(Literally 'Nothing that I know of' (subj.).)

Notes.—The Subjunctive is not so easy to understand as the other moods. It is employed generally in cases of uncertainty, doubt, fear, desire, and others exhibiting mental activity; with verbs of asking and demanding; after expressions that are impersonal such as—

Es probable que --- = It is probable that ---.

It is also necessary after certain conjunctions, such as-1

Para que ² = So that, in order that.
Cuando = When, whenever.
Antes que Before (that).
Después que = After (that).
Sin que = Without (that).

Como = As. Si = If.

Así que = As soon as. Hasta que = Until. Sea que = Be it that.

No obstante que = Notwithstanding (that).

Siempre que = Whenever (whenever be it that).

De miedo que = For fear that.

Aunque * = Although.

Por mas que * = However.

The use of the subjunctive, more tiresome, perhaps, than any other part of Spanish grammar, must be acquired by practice, though the above notes will greatly assist the student.

¹ Notice the use of 'que' (that).

Also 'de modo que 'and 'a fin de que.'

^{*} Also 'bien que.'

⁴ Also 'como quiera que.'

(Venga = Subjunctive present after a verb of wishing.)

A las tres, señor = At three o'clock, sir.

Estaré aquí á las tres = I shall be here at three.

Ne tengo nada que hacer = I have nothing (that) to do.

Qué tiene Vd. que hacer? = What have you (that) to Tengo mucho que hacer = I have much to do.

Vd. no tiene nada que = You have nothing to fear! temer!

(Note the use here of 'que.')

Va Vd. algunas veces al = Do you sometimes go campo? into the country?

Sí, de vez en cuando! = Yes, sometimes (from time to time).

Qué hace ? 2 = What are you doing ?

Acabo de escribir una carta = I have just written a letter.

¹ Notice the use of the third person with 'se.' 'Se habla español' means 'Spanish is spoken' or 'One speaks Spanish.'
² 'Vd.' understood. 'Que hace ella?' would mean 'What is a 'Vd.' understood. 'Que hace ella?' would mean 'What is she doing?' When any person or thing is under discussion, it is not necessary to include the pronoun.

Acabo de visitar á mi amigo = I have just visited my friend.

(The verb 'acabar' followed by 'de' and an infinitive is equivalent to the English 'to have just----.')

Yo no tengo ningún amigo = I have no friend.

Qué lástima! = What (a) shame!

No comprendo (intiendo) lo = I don't understand what que Vd. dice! you say!

('Lo que' means 'what' in the sense of 'that which.')

Me gustaría mucho saber = I should very much like lo que piensa Vd. to know what you think.

Quiere Vd. saberlo? = Do you wish to know (it)?

Sí, quiero saberlo = Yes, I wish to know (it).

Pienso que el hombre es el = I think that man is the animal más sabio del wisest animal in the mundo world.

CHAPTER IX

THE SEVENTH LESSON

Adverses may be formed from adjectives by the addition, to the feminine form in 'a,' of the suffix '-mente,' as explained in the 'Introductory Remarks' at the beginning of the book.

Other adverbs of importance, some of which have already been given, are—

Abajo	= Below, down-	Acá	= Here.
Acaso	= Maybe, per- haps.	Además	= Besides, more- over.
Adelante	= Forward.	Ahí	= There.
Ahora	= Now.	Allá	= There.
Antes	= Before.	Allí	= There.
Apenas	= Scarcely, hardly.	Aquí	= Here.
Arriba	= Above, up- stairs.	Asi	= Thus.
Atrás	= Behind.	Aún	= Even, yet.
Bastante	= Enough.	Bien	= Well.
Casi	= Almost.	Cerca	= About, near.
Cómo	= How.	Cuando	= When.
Debajo	= Underneath.	Delante	= Opposite, in front.
Demasiado	= Too much, too.	Dentro	= Inside.
Despacio	= Slowly.	Después	= Afterwards.
Detrás	= Behind.	Donde	= Wheτe.
Encima	= Upon.	Entonces	= Then.
Fuera.	= Outside.	Jamas	= Ever, never.
Junto á	= By the side of, next to.	Lejos	= Far, afar.
Luego	= Directly.	Mal	= Badly.
Ni	= Neither, nor.	Nunca	= Never.
Poco	= Little.	Pronto ¹	= Quickly, soon.
Pues	= Then.	Quizá ²	= Perhaps.
Siempre	= Always.	Sólo	= Only.
También	= Also.	Todavía	= Yet, still.
Ya	= Already.		1

² Also 'quizás.'

Any other grammatical points that remain to be explained will be dealt with as we come across them.

It is advisable that the student should know all the previous work thoroughly.

A STORY 1

Decía una madre á su hijo de cinco ó seis años de edad, para inducirle á que acabase su tarea, que "Nunca se debe lejar para mañana lo que se puede hacer hoy día."

"En este caso, mamá," le respondió el chiquillo muy á propósito, "hemos de acabar hoy mismo lo restante del pastelillo, y no guardarlo para mañana."

Maravillada la madre con tal agudeza, le dió permiso le acabarlo.

Translation

Said a mother to her son of five or six years of age, in order to (para) induce him to finish his task, that "Never must one leave for to-morrow that which (lo que) one can finish to-day" (hoy día).

"In this case, mamma," responded to her (le) the youngster, much à propos (to the point), "we have to finish to-day-itself the remainder of the cake and not leave it for to-morrow."

The mother, marvelling at such acuteness, gave him permission to finish it.

Notes

The construction is different to that of English sentences, therefore study it with the utmost care, not only in this extract but in all those that follow.

Nunca se debe dejar' signifies 'One never ought to leave.'
Literally, 'It never ought to leave itself.'
Lo que' means 'that which' or 'what.'

'Se puede hacer' means 'Can be done.' Literally, 'Can do itself.' These common reflexive forms must be carefully studied.

'Acabar' means 'To finish.' When followed by 'de' and an infinitive it signifies 'to have just' done something as already explained.

'Maravillada' is feminine agreeing with 'madre'; it signifies

'marvelling' or 'astonished at.'

'A proposito' means 'to the point' in this case; it also signifies 'on purpose'—vide next story.

A STORY

Un criado, algo tonto, tenía la costumbre de llevar al correo todas las cartas que encontraba en el escritorio de su amo. Un día echó al buzón una de ellas, que no tenía todavía el nombre ni las señas del destinatario.

Al volver á casa, su amo se irritó y le preguntó furioso, "Pero, bruto, no veías que en el sobre faltaba la dirección?"

"Bien lo ví," contestó el pobre hombre, " pero creí que Vd. lo hacía á proposito, con objeto de callar el nombre de la persona á quien manda la carta."

Translation

A servant, somewhat foolish, had the habit (custom) of taking to the post all the letters that he met with (found) on his master's desk.

One day he threw into the box one of them that had not yet the name or the address of the addressee. On returning to the house, his master became annoyed, and asked him angrily, "But, brute, 1 did you not see that on the envelope it lacked the address?"

"I saw it well," replied the poor man, "but I believed that you had done it on purpose, with the object of concealing the name of the person to whom you are sending the letter."

¹ This is merely a translation. The Englishman would say 'fool' or 'ass.'

Notes

- Algo' usually means 'something,' but when used with an adjective it signifies 'somewhat,' as 'algo tonto' in the above story; 'somewhat foolish,' 'somewhat stupid.'
- 'Amo' means 'master' or 'patron'; the feminine is 'ama.'
- ' Echar' means 'to throw.'
- 'Las senas.' The word 'seña 'means 'mark, sign'; in the plural, as above, it signifies 'address.'
- 'Volver' means 'to turn, to return.' Note the use of the infinitive in 'al volver,' signifying 'on returning.' Thus other infinitives may be employed.
- 'Irritar' alone means 'to irritate,' but 'irritarse' will naturally signify 'to irritate oneself,' or 'to become irritable,' or 'to get annoyed.'
- 'Faltar' means 'to lack.' One can say also 'Me falta un lápiz,' meaning 'I lack a pencil' or 'I want a pencil.' 'Qué le falta á Vd.?' means 'What is lacking to you?' or 'What do you want?'
- 'Dirección' means 'destination' or 'address.'
- ' Contestar' means 'to reply, answer.'
- 'A proposito' means 'on purpose.' Vide previous story.
- 'Callar' means either 'to be silent' or 'to conceal.'
- 'Mandar' means 'to send.'

THE RAINBOW (El arco iris) 1

El arco iris es producido por los siete rayos del prisma-

- (1). Rojo,
- (2), Naranjado,
 - (3). Amarillo,
 - (4). Verde,
- (5). Azul claro,
- (6). Azul oscuro, y
- (7). Morado,

refractados por los vapores y lluvia que nadan en la atmósfera, y reflejados sobre una nube oscura. Así es que sucede siempre en tiempo lluvioso, y cuando el cielo está aún nublado por un lado, y sol despejado por el otro, debiendo hallarse el observador entre la nube y el sol. La luna suele producir también el iris, igualmente que las grandes caídas de agua y cascadas, los ventisqueros, y las olas del mar.

Translation

The rainbow is produced by the seven rays of the prism—

- (1). Red,
- (2). Orange,
- (3). Yellow,
- (4). Green,
- (5). Light blue,
- (6). Dark blue, and
- (7). Violet,

refracted by vapours and rain that swim (hang) in the atmosphere, and reflected upon a dark cloud. Thus it is that it happens always in rainy weather and when the sky is still clouded on one side and clear sun on the other, the observer having to find himself between the cloud and the sun. The moon is accustomed also to produce the rainbow, equally with the great waterfalls and cascades, the glaciers and the waves of the sea.

Notes

- ' Arco iris' means 'rainbow.'
- 'Producir' means 'to produce.'
- 'El prisma' means 'prism.' Notice that, although it ends in 'a,' it is masculine.

Other common colours than those already given are-

Negro = black.
Blanco = white.
Pardo = gray.
Moreno = brown.

- 'Lluvia' means 'rain.'
- 'Llover' is the verb 'to rain.'
- 'Nadar' means 'to swim.'

^{&#}x27;El vapor' means 'vapour, steam.'

- 'Asi es' means 'thus it is' or 'it is thus.'
- 'Suceder' means either 'to succeed' or 'to happen.'
- 'Lado' means 'side'; 'por un lado' is 'on one side.'
- 'Despejar' is a verb signifying 'to remove, to clear away' things which impede, such as obstructions and impediments.
- 'Despejarse' (note the 'se') means 'to cheer up' and 'to become clear' when speaking of weather.
- 'Despejado' is an adjective signifying 'smart, quick, sagacious,' and also 'clear.'
- 'Debiendo' is the present participle of 'deber,' meaning 'to owe'; it also means 'to have to, to be obliged to,' and is therefore in English variously translated as 'must, ought,' etc. I have translated it 'having to' because we may not say 'musting to' or 'oughting to.' I might, however, have written 'being obliged to.'
- Suele' is the third person singular of 'soler,' meaning 'to be accustomed' to do a thing, so that in a past tense one might translate it by 'used to.' Another equivalent would be 'to be in the habit of.' This verb is followed by an infinitive.
- 'Igualmente que' I have translated by 'equally with,' but other expressions would have rendered the text equally clear, such as 'just like' or 'the same as.'
- 'Caida' is 'fall' (noun), being derived from the verb 'caer,' to fall.
- 'Ventisquero' is a 'glacier.' Other useful names among Nature's works are—

Los astros	= The stars	La erupción	= The eruption.
2305 6650100	(generally).	El hielo	= The ice.
El cielo	= The sky.	La nieve	= The snow.
	= The comet.	El valle	= The valley.
El cometa 1			= The rock.
La estrella	= The star.	La roca
La naturaleza	= Nature.	El polvo	= The powder,
El planeta 1	= The planet.		dust.
El ŝol	= The sun.	La piedra	= The stone.
La salida del	= The sunrise.	El ecuador	= The equator.
sol		El desierto	= The desert.
La puesta del	- The sunget	El país	= The country.
	= 1100 00000000	La arena	= The sand.
sol	007
La tierra	= The earth.	El clima	= The climate.
La colina	= The hill.	El rocío	= The dew.
La montaña	= The mountain.	La bruma	= The mist.
El lago	= The lake.	La niebla	= The fog.
La isla	= The island.	El granizo	= The hail.
El norte	= North.	El trueno	= The thunder.
	= South.	El terremoto	= The earth-
El sur		En terremoto
El este	= East.		quake.
El oeste	= West.	El relámpago	= The lightning.
El eclipse	$= The \ eclipse.$

A STORY

Dos muchachos que jugaban al pié de un nogal, hallaron en el suelo una nuez que se había caída del árbol.

"Es mía," dijo uno de ellos, " pues yo he sido el que la he visto primero."

"No," respondió el otro, "es mía, porque yo he sido el que la he recogido del suelo."

No pudiendo ponerse de acuerdo respecto al legítimo dueño de la nuez, ya estaban dispuestos á disputársela á golpes, cuando un joven que pasaba, habiéndose enterado del motivo de la querella, cogió la nuez, la partió y poniéndose en medio de los muchachos, les dijo, "Yo voy á poneros de acuerdo; la mitad de la cáscara pertenece al que la vió primero y la otra mitad al que la recogió del suelo. Respecto á la nuez, yo me la guardo en pago de la decisión que he dado. Este es," añadió riendo, "el resultado usual de todos los pleitos."

Translation

Two boys who were playing at the foot of a walnut-tree found on the ground a walnut that had fallen from the tree.

"It is mine," said one of them, "since (for) I have been he who have seen it first."

"No," replied the other, "it is mine, because I have been he who have gathered it from the ground."

Not being able to put themselves in accord respecting the legitimate owner of the nut, already they were disposed to dispute it with blows, when a young man who was passing, having informed himself of the motive of the quarrel, took the nut, separated it, and, putting himself between the boys, said to them, "I am going to put you in accord; half of the shell belongs to him who saw it first and the other half to him who gathered it from the ground; regarding the nut (the inside), I am keeping it to myself in payment for the decision that I have given. This is," he added laughing, "the usual result of all law-suits."

Notes

- 'Jugar' means 'to play.'
- 'Al pié de' means 'at the foot of'; note the contraction of 'á el' into 'al.'
- 'Hallar' means 'to find.'
- ' El suelo' means 'the ground.'
- 'Caer' means 'to tall.'
- "El que' means 'he who' or 'that one which.'
- 'Coger' means 'to catch, seize'; and
- Recoger' means 'to take back' and also 'to gather, to collect.'
- 'Pudiendo' is the present participle of 'poder' (to be able).
- 'De acuerdo' signifies 'in accord.'
- 'Dispuesto' is the past participle of 'disponer,' meaning 'to dispose'; also 'to arrange, prepare.'
- 'Disputarsela' means 'to dispute among themselves about it.'
- 'Disputar' means 'to question, contend in argument.'
- ' Un golpe' means 'a blow, a knock.'
- 'Enterar' means 'to acquaint, inform'; and
- 'Enterarse' will therefore signify 'to inform oneself,' or, as we might say, 'to get to know.'
- 'Partir' means 'to divide, separate, part.'
- 'El medio' means 'the middle.' 'En medio de' will therefore signify 'in the middle of.' In this instance, I have translated it by 'between.'
- 'Os' means 'you.' This is the form of the Accusative and Dative of the second person plural.
- 'Pertenecer' means 'to belong'; also 'to appertain.'
- 'Respecto à' means 'with respect to' or simply 'as regards.'
- 'Guardar' means 'to keep.'
- 'En pago de' means 'in payment of.' The verb 'to pay' is 'pagar.'
- 'Anadir' means 'to add.'

CHAPTER X

THE EIGHTH LESSON

A STORY

YENDO un día de caza, el Rey de España, Carlos IV., se extravió por los bosques y, como tenía mucha hambre, entró en una pobre choza, donde se comió para cenar dos huevos estrellados.

- "Cuanto te debo?" preguntó luego á la mujer que le servía.
 - "Dos mil reales, Señor," contestó la astuta campesina.
- "Demonio! Que raros serán los huevos en este país!"
- "No, Señor," replicó ella, sonriéndose, "lo rarísimo es ver al Rey comer en nuestra cabaña."

Translation

Going (along) one hunting-day, the King of Spain, Charles IV., lost his way through (in) the woods, and, as he was very hungry, he entered (into) a poor hut (cottage), where he ate two poached eggs.

- "How much do I owe thee?" he asked presently (to) the woman who served him.
- "Two thousand reales, sir," answered the astute countrywoman.
 - "The deuce! How rare will be eggs in this country!"
- "No, sir," she replied, smiling, "the most rare (rarest) thing is to see the King eating in our hut (poor cottage)."

Notes

- ' Yendo' is the present participle of 'ir.'
- 'Caza' means 'the hunt, chase.'
- 'Extraviar' means 'to mislead'; and
- ' Extraviarse' signifies 'to lose one's way.'
- 'El bosque' means 'the wood, forest, grove.'
- 'La choza' means 'a humble cottage.'
- 'Cenar' means 'to sup, to have a meal.'
- 'Estrellar' means 'to dash to pieces' and 'to confound.'
- ' Estrellado,' the past participle of the above, means 'starry'; and
- 'Huevos estrellados' means 'poached eggs.'
- 'Luego' means 'presently.'
- 'Contestar' means 'to answer, reply.'
- 'El demonio' means 'the demon.' It is here used as an exclamation.
- 'Replicar' means 'to reply.'
- 'Sonreirse' means 'to smile.' Notice that it is reflexive.
- 'Rarisimo' is the superlative of 'raro.'
- 'Cabaña' means 'a small cottage' or 'a hut.'

APPEARANCES 1

Cuando es de noche, parecen las estrellas en el cielo. De día hay también estrellas, pero la luz del sol no las deja resplandecer para nosotros. Cuando el sol se pone, va á alumbrar otros paises. No se mueve él, sino la tierra. Cuando vamos en un carruaje muy de prisa, nos parece que los árboles caminan hacia atrás; del mismo modo, como nos movemos con la tierra, nos parece que el sol muda de lugar. Muchas cosas parecen verdades y no lo son. Por eso se dice que "las apariencias nos engañan."

Translation

When it is night, the stars appear in the sky. By day there are also stars, but the sun's light does not let them shine for us. When the sun sets it goes to illuminate other lands. It does not move, but the earth (moves). When we go, in a carriage (car), very fast, it seems to us that the trees are journeying backwards (towards behind); in the same manner, as we are moving (move) with the earth, it seems to us that the sun changes place. Many things appear truths and are not (it, so). Through this (therefore) it is said that "appearances deceive us."

Notes

- 'De noche' means 'by night' or 'in the night-time.'
- 'Parecer' means 'to appear, seem.'
- 'De dia' means 'by day' or 'in the day-time.'
- 'Dejar' means 'to leave, let' and 'to allow.'
- 'Resplandecer' means 'to shine, gleam, glitter.'
- 'Para nosotros' means 'for us.' In the sense that we do not see the stars.
- 'Poner' is the verb 'to put, place.'
- 'Ponerse' in reference to the sun signifies 'to set.'
- 'Alumbrar' means 'to light'; it also signifies 'to enlighten.'
- 'Mueve' is derived from 'mover,' meaning 'to move.'
- 'Sino,' meaning 'but,' is used after a negative.
- 'De prisa' means 'quickly'; and
- 'Muy de prisa' signifies 'very quickly.'
- 'Hacia atrás' means 'backwards.' By itself 'hacia' i signifies 'towards' and 'atrás' 'backwards.'
- 'Mismo' means 'same.' When used with a pronoun it signifies 'self,' as, for instance, 'Yo mismo' (I myself).
- 'Mudar' means 'to charge, vary, alter.'
- 'El lugar' means 'the place, the situation.'
- 'La verdad' means 'the truth.'
- 'Enganar' means 'to deceive.'

AN ANECDOTE

Decía un andaluz, "Conocí á un hombre tan alto, tan grueso, y que pesaba tanto que cuando se murió tuvieron los supultureros que hacer dos viajes para llevarlo al cementerio."

¹ Do not confuse words which, in Spanish, are spelled alike but which have a different signification, such as 'hacia' (towards) and 'hacia' from the verb 'hacer'.

Translation

Said an Andalusian, "I knew a man so tall, so corpulent (fat), and who weighed so much that when he died the bearers had to make two journeys to carry him to the cemetery."

Notes

- 'Grueso' means 'fat' (of a human being).
- 'Pesar' means 'to weigh'; and
- ' El pesar' signifies 'sorrow, grief.'
- 'Morir' alone means 'to die'; and
- 'Morirse' signifies 'to die' and also 'to go out' in the sense of 'to be extinguished.'
- 'Tuvieron' is derived from 'tener,' and 'tener que' means 'to have to.'
- 'El viage' means 'a journey'; and
- 'Viajar' is the verb 'to travel.'
- 'Llevar' means 'to carry' and also 'to wear,' like the French 'porter.'

AN AMUSING EPITAPH

Yace aquí Blás . . . y se alegra Por no vivir con su suegra.

Translation

Here lies Blás . . . and rejoices Through not living with his mother-in-law.

- 'Yace' is derived from 'yacer,' meaning 'to lie.'
- 'Alegrarse' means 'to rejoice.'
- 'Por no vivir' is literally 'through, by not to live'; freely it becomes, 'Because he isn't living with his mother-in-law.'
- 'Suegra' means 'mother-in-law'; the masculine is 'suegro.'
 Other human relationships and their intimate connections are '---

A JOKE

"Díme, hijo! Un hombre se cae al suelo desde un tejado y otro desde una silla. ¿ Cual es el que se hace más daño?" ²

"El segunda, si la silla está en el tejado."

Translation

"Tell me, son! A man falls to the ground from a roof (tiled-roof) and another from a chair. Which is he who hurts himself most?"

"The second, if the chair is on the roof."

- 'Caer' means 'to fall.' Note the reflexive 'se.'
- 'Desde' meaning 'since' (of time) also signifies 'from' (of place).
- 'Daño' means 'hurt, harm.'
- 'Tejado' means 'tiled-roof' or simply 'roof.'

¹ Note that, in Spanish, one finds 'conm-' where in English the 'mm' occurs.

² Note the mark of interrogation also at the beginning.

A CHESTNUT

"¿ Tienes en clase buen sitio?" 1

"El mejor, papá—cerca de la estufa!"

Translation

"Have you (hast thou) a good position in the class?"
"The best, papa—near the stove!"

A RIDDLE (IN VERSE)

Dicen que soy rey Y no tengo reino. Dicen que soy rubio Y no tengo pelo. Afirman que ando Y no me meneo. Arreglo relojes Sin ser relojero.

Translation

They say I am king
And I have no queen.
They say I am "ginger" (reddish)
And I have no hair.
They affirm that I walk (go)
And I do not move about.
I regulate watches
Without being (a) watchmaker.

^{&#}x27;Rubio' means 'reddish' or 'red.'

^{&#}x27;Afirmar' meaning 'to affirm,' also signifies 'to secure, strengthen.'

[&]quot;Menear' means 'to move from place to place."

^{&#}x27;Arreglar' means 'to regulate.'

Note the two marks of interrogation.

² The answer is 'el sol' (the sun).

A STORY

Cuando Boabdil, último rey moro de Granada, se vió obligado á abandonar á España, terminada la guerra de la Reconquista, se detuvo en la cumbre del monte Padul.

Desde aquel elevado sitio, descubríase Granada, la Vega y el río Jenil, á orillas del cual se elevaban las tiendas de campaña del ejercito de los Reyes Católicos, Fernando é Isabel. A la vista de tan bello país, que iba á abandonar para siempre, Boabdil no pudo contener su emoción, y silenciosas lágrimas corrieron por sus mejillas. La sultana Aïxa, su madre, que le accompañaba en su destierro con los nobles que en otro tiempo componían su brillante corte, le dijo, " Llora, llora, como una débil mujer, la pérdida de un reino que no has sabido defender como hombre."

Pocos momentos después la hermosa Granada, último baluarte de la dominación árabe en España, desaparecía de su vista para siempre. Desde entonces aquel sitio se llamó y se llama aún hoy, "El Suspiro del Moro."

Translation.

When Boabdil, last Moor king of Granada, saw himself obliged to abandon Spain, the war of the Reconquest being ended, he tarried on the summit of (the) Mount Padul.

From this elevated spot revealed themselves Granada, the Vega, and the river Jenil, on the banks of which rose the tents of the army of the Catholic Rulers, Fernando and Tsabel.

At the sight of such a lovely country, that he was going to (was about to) abandon for ever, Boabdil could not contain his emotion, and silent tears ran down his cheeks. The "Sultana" Aïxa, his mother, who was accompanying him in his exile with the nobles who in another time (in other days) composed his brilliant court, said to him, "Weep, weep, like a weak woman (for) the loss of a kingdom which thou hast not known how to defend like a man!"

A few minutes after the beautiful Granada, last bastion of the Arab domination in Spain, disappeared from his view for ever. Since then that place was called, and even to-day is called, "The Sigh of the Moor."

Notes

- 'Terminada la guerra,' etc. In this phrase, the participle must be understood as meaning 'being ended.' Notice particularly the construction in Spanish.
- ' Detener' means 'to detain,' and
- 'Detenerse' signifies 'to detain oneself' or 'to tarry.'
- 'Descubrir' means 'to discover, uncover, reveal'; and
- 'Descubrirse' may be translated as 'to reveal oneself.'
- 'La tienda' may mean either 'the shop' or 'the tent.'
- ' La orilla' means 'the bank' of a river; and
- ' El banco' means 'the bank' of commerce.
- 'Los reyes,' literally meaning 'the kings,' here signifies 'rulers,' both the king and the queen.
- 'Correr' is the verb 'to run.'
- 'La mejilla' means 'the cheek.'
- 'Componer' means 'to compose.'
- 'Llora' from the verb 'llorar' (to weep) means 'Weep!' (imperative). In the foregoing story it must be translated 'Weep for!' or, in one word, 'Bewail!' which is equivalent.
- 'Débil' means 'weak.' Notice that the masculine and feminine forms are identical.
- 'Llamarse' means 'to call itself' or 'to be called.' Notice that the reflexive form in Spanish may be translated by the passive form in English.
- 'Aún' means 'even.'

CHAPTER XI

THE NINTH LESSON

In this chapter, for the sake of fostering interest, I intend to begin with a further selection of conversational matter which, as before, must be experimented upon by the student, new words being substituted for those given. Here is an instructive way of practising upon a sentence: Let us choose such an English one as 'I am going to town.' If we were teaching a foreigner, we might give him the following variations—

Present: 'I am going to town to-day.'
Past: 'I was going to town yesterday.'

Future: 'I shall be going to town to-morrow.'

Conditional: 'I should be going to town, if--.'1

According to the sense, we might continue thus-

Present: 'I often go to town.'

Past: 'I often went to town.'
Future: 'I shall often go to town.'

Conditional: 'I should often go to town, if ---.' 1

Still further varying the meaning, we might continue indefinitely. Here, again—

Present: 'When I go to town ----.'

Past: 'When I went to town ---.'

Future: 'When I (shall) go to town ——.'

Conditional: 'If I should go to town ---.' 1

This is how the student must work and form new phrases and sentences for himself if he wishes to attain fluency in any language whatever. To some students it may appear to be a very tiresome process, yet it ought not to breed discouragement, since it advances them upon their way. Both the analytic and synthetic methods must be practised if one wishes to make sure and steady progress. Therefore, it behoves one not only to read passages with the help of grammar and dictionary, but also to form sentences also with their help. The second is naturally the more difficult process, since both declensions and conjugations must be known with their respective irregularities. In language-study the predominant factor is undoubtedly patience; let the student of foreign idioms cultivate it. The reward is sure, and indeed worthy of attempt.

CONVERSATIONAL MATTER

Cuántos habitantes tiene = How many inhabitants has Spain? España?

No sé exactamente, pero = I don't know exactly, but creo que tiene unos diez y siete milliones

Tiene Vd. un despacho = Have you : big office? grande?

poco elegante pero uno de los más agradables del piso

Mi despacho es un cuarto = My office is a room, not very elegant, but one of the most agreeable on the floor (storey of a building).

I believe above seventeen millions.

El habló sabia y elocuente- = He spoke learnedly and eloquently. mente

^{&#}x27; Unos diez y siete milliones' means 'some seventeen millions.'

^{*} Poco elegante ' means ' not very (little) elegant.'

^{&#}x27;Sabia,' if alone as an adverb, would have been 'sabiamente.' When two adverbs, formed from adjectives, come together in the same sentence, as above, the first need not take the suffix '-mente.'

Mientras la mujer lloraba, = Whilst the woman was weeping, the soldier el soldado reía was laughing.

cuando venga su hermano de Vd., dígale que vuelvo al momento!

En caso que yo esté ausente = In case I be absent when your brother comes, tell him that I am returning at once! (in a moment)

Notes

Que mal tiempo hace hoy! = What bad weather it is to-day!

Sí, pero hará peor mañana = Yes, but it will be worse to-morrow.

Ha venteado1 toda la noche = It has blown (been blowing) all night!

= Yes, and it's raining Si, y está lloviendo ahora now.

Habiéndome paseado toda = Having walked all the la mañana, tengo ganas de comer morning, I have great desire to eat.

Qué tiene Vd. ganas de = What do you wish to comer?

eat? No mucho; un poco de = Not much; a little meat with bread.

carne con pan

Se dice que la virtud es = It is said that virtue is better than money, but not all think so (it).

mejor que el dinero, pero no todos lo piensan

^{&#}x27;Mientras' means 'whilst.'

^{&#}x27;Esté' and 'venga' are subjunctives with 'en caso que' and

^{1 &#}x27;Ventear' means 'to blow' with reference to the wind.

Después de haber oído al = After having heard the orador, quién habló clara- orator, who mente, pregunté su nombre, y me dijeron que era el Señor Rivera spoke clearly, I asked his name, and they told me that it was Mr. Rivera.

Habla bien este señor! = He speaks well!

Un paseo tan corto le ha = So short a walk has fatigado ya?

already tired him (her)?

Si, me ha fatigado tambien! = Yes, and it has also tired me!

Está Vd. causado?

= Are you tired?

Si, estoy muy causado = Yes, I'm very tired.

comer?

 \dot{A} que hora quiere Vd. = At what time will you eat?

À la hora de costumbre, si = At the usual time, if you quiere! like!

Prefiero comer una media = I prefer to eat half an hora más tarde, yo!

hour later, I do!

Notes

'Si quiere' means 'if you wish, like.'

Este libro tiene el mismo = This book is the same tamaño que el otro size as the other.

Notes

Sabe Vd. donde vive el = Do you know where Mr. Señor Torres? Torres lives?

^{&#}x27;Yo' at the end of such a sentence signifies 'me' or 'I do' as. above. Literally the whole may be translated, 'For myself, I prefer to eat half an hour later.'

^{&#}x27;Mismo' means 'same.'

[&]quot;El tamano ' means 'the size.'

Sé que vive en esta calle, = I know that he lives in pero no recuerdo el número this street, but I don't remember the number.

Es casado? = Is he married?

No estoy seguro, pero creo = I'm not sure, but I beque no! lieve not.

Notes

. Recuerdo 'is derived from 'recordar,' meaning 'to remind, remember.' There is another verb, used reflexively, 'acordarse,' meaning both 'to come to an agreement' and 'to remember.'

'Creo que no!' means 'I believe not' or 'I don't believe so.'
Similarly 'creo que si' would be 'I believe so!' or 'yes, I believe so!'

AN EPIGRAM

Both are signs of peace, and appear after a storm (disturbance), generally.

2. ¿ Qué es lo primero que hizo Napoleón cuando cumplió los treinta años ?

Entrar en los treinta y uno!

Translation

What is the first (thing) that Napoleon did when he completed his thirty years (when he became thirty years old)?

To enter into his thirty-first (year)!

3. i En qué mes hablan menos las mujeres ? . En el de Febrero !

Translation

In what month do women least speak? In that of February! ¹

Notes

Ambos' means 'both'; the feminine form is 'ambas.'

'Hizo' is the past definite of 'hacer.'

Cumplit' is derived from 'cumplir.' meaning 'to fulfil.' Hi

Cumplib' is derived from 'cumplir,' meaning 'to fulfil.' Hence 'when he fulfilled his thirty years.'

PROVERBS (Refrancs) 2

Dime con quien andas, y te = Tell me with whom thou dire quien eres!

Mas vale un pájaro en la = A bird in the hand is mano que ciento volando! worth two in the bush!

^{&#}x27;Andas' is from 'andar.'

^{&#}x27;Muere' is from 'morir' (to die).

^{&#}x27;Proponer' and 'disponer' each contain the verb 'poner.'

^{&#}x27;Batir' means 'to beat, strike.'

^{&#}x27;1 'Bastar' means 'to suffice, to be enough.'

^{2 &#}x27;Valer' means 'to be worth.'
3 'Quebrar' means 'to break.'

⁴ Literally 'A bird in the hand is worth more than a hundred flying.'

- 'El cántaro' means 'a pitcher, water-pot.'
- 'La fuente' means 'fountain.'
- 'Por fin' means 'in the end, at last.'
- 'De repente' means 'suddenly.'

profeta en su patria lo cual sería verdad sin los ejemplos contrarios

El refrán dice que nadie es = The proverb says that nobody is a prophet in his (own) country, which would be true without (if it were not for) the exceptions.

AN ANECDOTE

Preguntó un día un inspector á un alumno, "¿ En donde estaba Dios?"

Y le contestó el avispado chico "Decidme primero, señor, en donde no está, y os diré despues en donde se halla!"

Translation

An inspector asked a pupil one day, "Where God was?" And the sharp youngster answered, "Tell me first, sir, where He is not, and I will tell you then where He is (is to be found)!"

Notes

- 'Hallar' means 'to find.'
- 'Hallarse' means 'to find oneself, itself,' or 'to be found.'

AN ANECDOTE

Hallaron tres hombres un tesoro; mas como no satisfaciese el hambre que les acostaba, enviaron á uno de ellos á un pueblo vecino para que trajese algo de comer.

Cuando hubo comprado la comida el enviado, dijo para sí, "Si la enveneno, morirán sin duda mis dos compañeros, y el tesoro será mío por entero." Y la envenenó! Entretanto hablaban los otros dos hombres de esta manera: "Si le matamos cuando llegue, el tesoro será de los dos únicamente." Y le mataron!

Comieron en seguida de lo que les había traido y murieron igualmente, tanto que el tesoro quedo sin dueño.

Translation

Three men found a treasure; but as the hunger which troubled them remained unsatisfied, they sent one of themselves to a neighbouring village so that he might bring something to eat.

When the messenger (the sent-one) had bought the food, he said to (for) himself, "If I poison it, my two companions, no doubt, will die, and the treasure will be mine entirely." And he poisoned it!

Meanwhile spoke (were speaking) the other two men in this manner: "If we kill him when he arrives, the treasure will be for the two of us only (solely)." And they killed him!

They are afterwards of that which he had brought them, and they died as well, so that the treasure remained without owner.

- 'Satisfacer' means 'to satisfy'; and
- 'Satisfacerse' means 'to satisfy oneself.'
- 'Acosar' means 'to molest,' also 'to vex.'
- 'Trajese' is the subjunctive imperfect of 'traer.'
- 'Para que' meaning 'in order that' requires the subjunctive.
 'Para' alone (without 'que') is followed by the infinitive as, 'para traer,' meaning 'in order to bring.'
- 'Algo' means either 'something' or 'anything.'
- 'El enviado' from 'enviar' (to send). It is the past participle of the verb used as a noun. Therefore 'el enviado' may be taken to mean 'the sent-one' or 'the one sent.'
- 'Envenenar' means 'to poison.'

¹ Or 'as it did not satisfy the hunger which menaced them.'.

- 'Sin duda' means 'without doubt.'
- 'Por entero' means 'entirely' or 'wholly.'
- ' Entretanto ' means ' meanwhile.'
- 'De esta manera' means 'in this manner' or 'in this way.'
- 'Matar' means 'to kill'; hence the word 'matador' of the bull-fight, meaning the 'killer.'
- 'Llegue' from 'llegar' (to arrive), subjunctive after 'cuando' (an indefinite 'when,' meaning 'whenever' or 'at whatever time').
- 'En seguida' means 'afterwards.' The verb 'seguir' means 'to follow.'
- 'Igualmente' means 'equally.' I have translated it as 'as well' in order to make sense.
- 'Tanto que' means 'so that' in this instance.

CHAPTER XII

THE TENTH LESSON

EACH of the following sentences should be studied with the utmost care, since they contain much that is useful. They have been specially selected because they contain examples of grammatical constructions which have already been shown.

The subjunctive forms should be examined.

It is simple enough to memorise words, but the construction of a sentence is much more difficult. In the first case, the accidence must be well learned; in the second, one must endeavour to enter into the spirit of the language, to accept its mannerisms without comment at first. Learn a phrase and turn it about by substitution. Then repeat it aloud with emphasis, again and again. That is the secret of fluent speech.

CONVERSATIONAL MATTER

Mi hermano quiere que = My brother wishes me to salga 1 con él! go out with him!

Tu padre suele² decir que es = Thy father is accustomed muy pobre to say that he is very poor.

La hermana de mi amigo se = My friend's sister smiles sonríe cada vez que me ve each time she sees me.

 ^{&#}x27;Salga' from 'salir' (to go out). It is the subjunctive form after a verb of 'wishing,' 'desiring.'
 'Suele' from 'soler' (to be accustomed, to be in the habit of), verdad y que el que dijere lo contrario, miente

Quisiéramos hacer un viaje = We should like to make a á España, pero cuesta muy caro y como somos pobres, hemos de renunciar á él

Quisiera que alguien me = I should wish that somecondujese á la ciudad!

Me gustaría mucho visitar = I should very much like á Vd.

Sería menester que Vds. = It would be necessary diesen la hospitalidad á su viejo amigo durante unos días á lo menos!

Hace algunos días dí mi = A few days ago I gave my retrato á mi amiga pero no le gustó

No me gusta este libro! Como relampagueaba mucho = As it was lightening very nos decidimos á no salir

Despues de habernos pasea- = After having walked four do cuatro horas tomamos un coche para volver á casa > journey to Spain, but it costs so dear and as we are poor we have to abandon it (renounce it).

Mi primo dice que esta es la = My cousin says that this is the truth and that he who says (will say-Subj. fut.) the contrary, lies.

> one might conduct me to the town!1

> to visit you.

César vino, vió, y venció! = Cæsar came, saw, and conquered!

> for you to give hospitality to your old friend for a few days at least!

portrait to my lady friend, but it didn't please her.2

= I don't like this book!

much we decided not to go out.

hours we took a carriage to return home.

^{1 &#}x27;I wish someone would conduct me to the town.'

^{2 &#}x27;She didn't like it.'

No te atrevas jamás á hab- = Never dare (thou) to speak to me of this! larme de esto!

Esté Vd. persuadido de que = Be sure that you will be siempre será bien recialways well received! bido!

He tomado un baño y tengo = I have taken a bath and I'm still warm! calor todavía!

Enrique Cuarto de Francia = Henry the Fourth fué asesinado en mil France was assassinated in one thousand seiscientos diez six hundred and ten.

' ¿ Tiene Vd. 'El Honor'?' = 'Have you 'The Honour'?'

'; Qué honor ?'

'El de Sudermann' señor!

'Ni yo tampoco!'

ocultar en su interior todos los apuros que les agobian y por fuera siempre parecen alegres y hasta chistosos

= 'What honour?'

= 'Sudermann's.'

'No le conozco á este = 'I don't know the gentleman!'

= 'Nor do I either!'

Hay hombres que saben = There are men who know (how) to hide in their interior all the griefs oppress that and outwardly appear happy and even humorous.

Notes

Above all things the student must study very carefullyanalytically—the order of words in Spanish sentences so that he may be able to express himself distinctly. As in all previous work, so in the present, must be furnish himself with new sentences and phrases by substitution.

'Durante unos dias' means 'during a few days.' In English one says 'for a few days.'

'Hace' when used of 'time' means 'ago.'

' Nos decidimos & no salir' means literally 'We decided to not goout.'

· Habernos paseado ' means 'having walked.' Note the reflexive use of 'nos' meaning 'us.'

Atreverse' means 'to dare'; it is reflexive.

'Todavia' means both 'yet' and 'still.' This word is best studied within a phrase or sentence.

Tampoco' means 'neither' (not either). Notice its use in 'ni yo tampoco' meaning 'nor do I' or 'I don't either.'

'Ocultar' means 'to hide, conceal.' Another translation of frequent usage, is 'esconder.'

' El apuro' means 'the grief, sorrow.'

'Agobiar' means in this case 'to oppress'; it also signifies 'to bend down.'

'Por fuera' means 'outwardly.'

'Chistoso' means 'gay, lively' and 'humorous, funny.'

'Un chiste' is 'a joke' or 'witty saving.'

No me afeito nunca, porque = I never shave, because I no tengo barba have no beard.

Notes

'Afeitarse' means 'to shave oneself.' For this operation one employs 'una navaja' or 'una navaja de afeitar' (a razor), and 'una brocha' (shaving-brush) and, of course, 'el jabón' (soap). The rest that is required is 'agua caliente' (hot water) and 'una toalla' (a towel).

El tiempo y la temperatura = The weather and varían mucho, según las estaciones. Por no hacer fríos tremendos ni calores excesivos, resulta la primavera la más hermosa y agradable de todas temperature vary very much, according to the seasons. By not being tremendously cold and excessively hot, Spring results in being the most beautiful and agreeable of all.

^{&#}x27;Según' means 'according to.'

Por no hacer' means 'by not being'; it may also signify 'by not making.'

^{&#}x27;Frios' and 'calores' are in the plural; they signify 'colds' and 'heats.'

A fines de septiembre se va = At the end (plur.) of Sepel verano para dejar entrar el otoño goes away to let the autumn enter.

Notes

' A fines de' used in the plural, meaning 'at the end of.'

'Se va' from 'irse' ('ir' with 'se') means 'to go away' or 'to go off.'

'Para dejar entrar' means 'so as to allow to enter.' The word 'para' may be translated variously 'for,' 'so as,' or 'in order to.' The words 'para que' followed by the subjunctive mean 'so that' and 'in order that.'

El invierno es la estación = Winter is the coldest and más fría y más triste del saddest season of the year.

Note carefully the order of words.

Entra el verano el 21 de = Summer enters on the Junio y dura hasta el 25 de Septiembre

21st of June and lasts until the 25th of September.

Al llegar el verano, hace un = On the arrival of summer calor sofocante the heat becomes suffocating.

Notes

- 'Entra el verano' means 'summer enters,' or, literally, 'enters the summer.'
- 'Al llegar' means 'on the arrival.' Note the use of the infinitive as a noun with the article. 'Al' means 'at the' or 'to the' (masculine form). Most verbs may be used in this way. 'Al ver caer las hojas 'means' on seeing the leaves fall ,' or it might be translated 'at the sight of the leaves falling .'

En el colegio los alumnos = In the college the pupils hacen una figura de nieve, poniendole una pipa en putting a pipe into its mouth.

Cuántos años ha vivido Vd. = How many years have en Londres? you lived in London?

(de afeitar) razor.

Los soldados defienden á la = The soldiers defend the patria fatherland.

Me duele la cabeza! = My head aches!

Me duelen los dientes! = My teeth ache!

Notes

- 'Defender' means 'to defend.'
- 'Doler' means 'to ache.'

El hijo fué enviado por su = The son was sent by his padre father.

El reloj perdido por mi = The watch lost by my madre fué hallado por mi mother was found by prima my cousin.

Notes

'Hallar' is the verb 'to find.'

One might equally well employ the past definite 'naci' (I was born).

No creo que mi padre coja = I don't think my father muchas uvas en su jardín este año gathers (will gather) many grapes in his garden this year.

Notes

'Coger' means 'to catch, gather, seize, procure.' Note the change from 'g' to 'j' for the sake of euphony.

attacked (assaulted) the town about (towards) midnight.

Notes

- 'Dividir' means 'to divide, separate.'
- 'Dividirse' means 'to part, separate oneself.'

'Anadir' means 'to augment.'

- 'Obtener' means 'to obtain.' The reflexive form se obtiene' may be translated either 'one obtains' or 'is obtained.'
- 'Acometer' means 'to assault, attack.'
- 'Hacia' means 'towards' or 'about.'

Todavía el marinero no me = The sailor has not yet given me the map!1 ha dado la mapa!

Si yo no hubiera gastado = If I hadn't spent all my todo mi dinero, compraría un regalo para mi amiga money, I should buy a present for my lady friend.

Notes

- 'Gastar' means 'to spend.'
- 'Comprar' means 'to buy.'
- 'Un regalo' means 'a present.'

INGLATERRA

El imperio romano comprendía todo el mundo conocido entonces, hasta que en el siglo V. fué deshecho por los bárbaros.

El imperio español fué todavía más poderoso y más vasto, cuando comprendía dos hemisferios y lo alumbraba constantemente el sol.

Pero el imperio más grande, más rico y más admirable que ha conocido el mundo, es el imperio británico del siglo XIX.

Inglaterra tiene posesiones en toda la superficie terrestre y es dueña de los mares. Sus posesiones de América son más extensas que los Estados Unidos.

Sus dominios de Asia son tan grandes como Europea. Sus colonias de África son dilatadísimas, siendo visibles su influencia y su preponderancia en todo el continente.

Australia le pertenece, como igualmente la mayor parte de las islas de Oceanía.

Tiene en Europa su territorio natural, y domina en Irlanda, y ocupa importantes posiciones que geográficamente corresponden á Alemania, Francia, España, Italia y Grecia.

Además posee la mayor parte de los estrechos é islas que constituye posiciones estratégicas, las más estratégicas del globo.

Llegarán, tal vez en día no lejano, la decadencia y la ruina de tan colosal imperio, que al fin tendrá la suerte del imperio español y del romano.

Pero entre tanto domina por la superioridad incontestable de su fuerza y su riqueza.

El comercio inglés supera en importancia y en inteligencia al de todas las naciones juntas.

La industria inglesa no reconoce rival.

Su marina mercante frecuenta sin cesar todos los puertos del mundo.

Y la de guerra, superior en calidad y en cantidad á la que reunir pudierar todas la potencias de Europa, mantiene con sus cañones en todas las latitudes el honor de la bandera inglesa.

La metrópoli de este gran imperio es proporcional á su riqueza y á su magnitud.

Londres, capital de tan poderosa monarquía, es una ciudad sin rival en nuestro tiempo, sin semejanza en las épocas remotas.

Londres contiene más católicos que Roma, más judios que Palestina entera, más irlandeses que Dublin, más escoceses que Edimburgo, más galeses que Cardiff.

La mortalidad es muy pequeña relativamente á la masa de la población.

Londres es la más sana de las capitales europeas.

Translation.

The Roman Empire comprised all the then-known world, until in the fifth century it was destroyed by the barbarians.

The Spanish Empire was still more powerful and vaster, when it comprised two hemispheres and the sun constantly illuminated it.

But the greatest empire, the richest and the most admirable that the world has known, is the Britannic Empire of the nineteenth century.

England has possessions on all the surface of the earth and is mistress of the seas.

Her possessions in America are more extensive than the United States.

Her dominions in Asia are greater than Europe.

Her African colonies are most extensive, her influence and preponderance being visible in the whole continent.

Australia belongs to her, as do the greater part of the Oceanic islands.

In Europe she has her native territory and dominates Ireland, and occupies important positions that correspond geographically to Germany, France, Spain, Italy, and Greece.

Moreover (besides), she possesses the greater part of the straits and islands that constitute strategic positions—the most strategic in the world.

There will arrive, perhaps in no distant day, the decadence and ruin of such a colossal empire, which, in the end, will have the fate of the Spanish Empire and the Roman.

But meanwhile she governs (dominates) by the incontestable superiority of her force and her richness (riches).

English commerce surpasses in importance and in intelligence all the nations together.

English industry recognises no rival.

Her mercantile marine visits without ceasing (incessantly) all the ports of the world.

And that of war (the marine), superior in quality and in quantity to that which the powers of Europe could unite, maintains with its cannons in all latitudes the honour of the English flag.

The metropolis (capital) of this great empire is proportionate to its richness and to its magnitude.

London, capital of such a powerful monarchy, is a city without rival in our time, without resemblance in remote epochs.

London contains more Catholics than Rome, more Jews than entire Palestine, more Irish than Dublin, more Scots than Edinburgh, more Welsh than Cardiff.

Mortality is less, relatively to the mass of population. London is the healthiest of all European capitals.

Notes

- Comprender' means 'to understand' and 'to comprise.'
- 'Deshecho' comes from 'deshacer,' meaning 'to undo' and 'to destroy.'
- ' Alumbrar' means 'to light,'
- 'La duena' means 'mistress, owner, proprietress.' The masculine is 'dueno.'
- 'Los Estados Unidos' means 'The United States.'
- 'Dilatadisimas' is the superlative of the adjective 'dilatado,' meaning 'large, numerous, extensive.' It originates from the verb—
- 'Dilatar,' meaning 'to dilate, expand, spread out.'
- 'Pertenecer' means 'to belong, appertain.'
- 'Dominar' means 'to rule, command, dominate.'

Ocupar' means 'to occupy.'

Corresponder' means 'to correspond.'

- 'Además' means 'moreover, further.'
- 'Poseer' is the verb 'to possess.'
- 'Constituir' is the verb 'to constitute.'
- 'Llegar' is the verb 'to arrive.'
- 'Lejano' means 'distant, far' (adjective). The adverb is 'lejos.'
- 'La suerie' means 'the fortune, fate' (good or bad).
- ' Entre tanto' means 'meanwhile.'
- 'Superar' means 'to overcome, conquer, surpass.'
- 'Reconocer' means 'to recognise.'
- 'Frecuentar' means 'to frequent.'
- 'Reunir' means 'to unite, reunite.' Notice the style of the Spanish here—'Reunir pudierar.'
- 'Mantener' means 'to maintain.'
- 'Contener' means 'to contain.'

A STORY

Se refiere una anécdota de un escocés que era oficial del ejército británico y fué mandado con su regimiento á Gibraltar.

En aquel entonces era subalterno y hallábase un día de guardia con otro compañero, el cual tuvo la desgracia de caer en un precipicio de cuatrocientos piés de profundidad, y quedó muerto.

Era deber del subalterno dar cuenta de lo ocurrido en la guardia, y habiéndolo hecho así, añadió la fórmula de costumbre, "Nada de particular ha ocurrido en la guardia."

El fatal accidente de la caída llegó á oidos del comandante, y naturalmente la frase, de "nada de particular ha ocurrido" le causó extrañeza.

"¡Como!" exclamó, "llama Vd. á eso 'nada de particular,' cuando su compañero ha muerto, cayendo de una altura de cuatrocientos piés?"

"Si, señor," replicó el subalterno, "no he creído que hubiera en ello nada de extraordinario. Si el pobre amigo hubiese caído en un precipicio de cuatrocientos piés, sin quedar muerto, si que lo hubiera hallado muy extraordinario."

Translation.

An anecdote is related of a Scotsman who was an officer of the British Army and was sent with his regiment to Gibraltar.

In it (the regiment) then, he was a subaltern, and found himself one day on guard with a companion, who had the misfortune to fall over a precipice of a depth of four hundred feet, and lay dead.

It was the duty of the subaltern to report the occurrence to the guard, and having done so, he added the customary formula, "Nothing particular has occurred in the guard."

The fatal accident of the fall came to the hearing of the commandant, and naturally, the phrase, "Nothing particular has occurred" caused him astonishment.

"What!" he exclaimed, "do you call this 'nothing particular,' when your comrade has died, falling from a height of four hundred feet?"

"Yes, sir," replied the subaltern, "I did not believe that there would be anything extraordinary in it. If the poor friend had fallen over a precipice of four hundred feet, without being dead, indeed I should have called it very extraordinary."

Notes

^{&#}x27;Referir' means 'to refer, relate, report.' Therefore 'se refiere' means 'it reports itself,' or 'it is reported.'

^{&#}x27;Hallabase de guardia' means 'he found himself on duty, on guard,' or 'he was on guard, on duty.'

^{&#}x27;La desgracia' means both 'misfortune' and 'disgrace.'

^{&#}x27;Caer' means 'to fall.'

^{&#}x27; Dar cuenta' means 'to give account.'

CHAPTER XIV

THE TWELFTH LESSON

THE following extract is not translated as heretofore, but a -vocabulary of the most necessary words has been placed at the end of it.

THE BULL-FIGHT 1

Los tres picadores saludaron al presidente de la plaza, precedidos de los bandilleros y chulos, espléndidamente vestidos.

Capitaneaban á todos los primeros espadas y sus sobresalientes, cuyos trajes eran todavía más lujosos que los de aquellos.

El alcalde hizo la seña; sonaron los clarines, que produjeron un levantamiento general, y entonces se abrió la ancha puerta del toril.

Un toro colorado se precipitó en la arena y fué saludado por una explosión de gritos, de silbidos, de injurias y de elogios.

Al oir este tremendo estrépito, el toro se paró, alzó la cabeza y pareció preguntar con sus encendidos ojos si todas aquellas provocaciones se dirigían á él; reconoció el terreno y volvió precipitadamente la cabeza á uno y otro lado. Todavía vaciló, crecieron los recios silbados; entonces se precipitó con prontitud hácia el picador.

Pero retrocedió al sentir el dolor que le produjo la puya de la garrocha en el morrillo; no se encarnizó en este primer ataque, sino que embistió al segundo picador.

Este no le aguardaba tan prevenido como su antecesor; así es que hirió al animal sin detenerlo. Las astas desaparecieron en el cuerpo del caballo que cayó al suelo.

Alzóse un grito de espanto en todo el circo; al punto todos los chulos rodearon aquel grupo horrible; pero el feroz animal se había apoderado de la presa y no se dejaba distraer de su venganza.

El toro se cebaba en el caballo; el caballo abrumaba con su peso y sus movimientos convulsivos al picador.

Entonces se vió llegar, sosegado y risueño, á un joven cubierto de plata, que brillaba como una estrella. Se acercó por detrás del toro y cogió con sus dos manos la cola de la fiera y la atrajo á sí, como si hubiese sido un perrito faldero.

Sorprendido el toro, se revolvió furioso contra su adversario, quien andando hácia atrás, evitó el primer choque con una media vuelta á la derecha.

El toro volvió á embestir, y el joven lo esquivó segunda vez con un recorte á la izquierda, siguiendo del mismo modo hasta llegar cerca de la barrera.

Allí desapareció á los ojos atónitos del animal y á las ansiosas miradas del público, el cual, ebrio de entusiasmo, atronó los aires con inmensos aplausos.

El toro había despachado ya un número considerable de caballos.

Otros, que no habían podido levantarse, yacían tendidos con las convulsiones de la agonía; á veces alzaban la cabeza, en que se pintaba la imagen del terror.

A ciertas señales de vida, el toro volvía á la carga hiriendo de nuevo con sus fieras astas los miembros destrozados de su víctima.

Después, ensangrentada la frente, se paseaba alrededor del circo, unas veces alzando la cabeza á las gradas donde la gritería no cesaba un momento, otras hácia los chulos, que pasaban delante de él, á manera de metéoros, clavandole las banderillas.

A una señal del presidente, sonaron otra vez los clarines, Pepe Vera,¹ con una espada y una capa encarnada, se encaminó hácia el palco del Ayuntamiento,² se dirigió al Duque,³ y quitándose la montera,—

"Brindo!" dijo, "por Vuestra Excelencia, y por la real moza que tiene á su lado."

Y al decir esto, arrojó al suelo la montera con inimitable desgaire, y partió adonde su obligación le llamaba.

Agitó la capa que llevaba en la mano izquierda.

El toro le embistió.

El le pasó de muleta, y en cuanto la fiera volvió á acometerle, le dirigió la espada por entre las dos espadillas, de modo que el animal, continuando su arranque, ayudó á que todo el hierro penetrase en su cuerpo hasta la empuñadura.

Al mismo tiempo, sonó la música militar.

Pepe Vera atravesó el circo en medio de frenéticos testimonios de aprobación, saludando con la espada, sin que excitase en su pecho sorpresa ni orgullo un triunfo que más de un emperador romano habría enviado.

The extract which follows has neither translation nor vocabulary. It will be a useful exercise for practice with the dictionary.

CAPTAIN HARVEY 1

La noche del 17 de marzo de 1870 el Normandy hacía su travesía habitual de Southampton á Guernsey.

Una espesa bruma cubría el mar.

El capitán Harvey estaba de pié en la casilla del steamer y maniobraba con precaución, á causa de la noche y de la niebla.

El Normandy era un gran buque, el más hermoso quizá de la marina de la Mancha. Seiscientas toneladas, 220 piés ingleses de largo y 25 de ancho.

Era joven, como dicen los marinos; tenía siete años, y había sido construído en 1863.

El capitán Harvey era sobre poco más ó menos de la edad que contaba entonces el que escribe estas líneas; tenía patillas blancas, el rostro enérgico y la mirada franca y alegre.

La niebla espesaba, el buque había salido de la ría de Sheerness, estaban en plena mar y avanzaba lentamente.

Eran las cuatro de la mañana.

La oscuridad era absoluta; una especie de nube envolvía el vapor, y apenas se distinguían las puntas de los mástiles.

Nada tán terrible como estos navíos ciegos que avanzan en la noche.

De pronto una masa negra surgió de la bruma.

Fantasma y montañas, promontorio de sombra avanzando sobre la espuma y horadando las tinieblas. Era la Mary gran buque de hélice procedente de Odesa y que llevaba rumbo á Grimsby, con un cargamento de cien toneladas de grano. Velocidad inmensa, peso enorme. La Mary avanza directamente sobre el Normandy.

Con tal velocidad se deslizan estos espectros de navíos en la niebla, que no hay medio de evitar el choque. Son encuentros sin aviso; antes que se acabe de verlos se ha muerto.

La Mary, lanzada á todo vapor, cogió al Normandy por un costado, y le deshizo el casco. La avería producida en ella por el choque la detuvo.

Había en el Normandy 28 hombres de tripulación, una mujer de servicio y 21 pasajeros, entre los cuales se contaban 12 mujeres.

La sacudida fué espantosa.

En un instante todos estuvieron en el puente, hombres, mujeres y niños, medio desnudos, corriendo, gritando, llorando.

El agua entraba en el interior del buque con furia espantosa.

El combustible de la máquina, apagado por el agua, agonizaba.

El navío no tenía mamparos insumergibles; los cinturones de salvamento faltaban.

El capitán Harvey, de pié sobre la toldilla, gritó,— "¡Silencio y atención!—Los botes al agua, las mujeres primero, los pasajeros en seguida,—la tripulación después. Hay 60 personas que salvar!"

Eran 61 pero el se olvidaba de sí.

Los botes fueron echados al agua.

Todos se precipitaron á ellos.

Aquella precipitación podía hacerlos zozobrar.

Ockeleford, el lugarteniente, y los tres contramaestres Goodwin, Bennett y West contuvieron aquella multitud frenética de horror. Dormir y despertar para morir, es espantoso. Sin embargo, por encima de aquellos gritos y de aquél ruido la voz tranquila del capitán, y este breve diálogo se cruzaba en las tinieblas.

[&]quot;; Maquinista Locks!"

[&]quot;; Capitán!"

- "¿ Como está la caldera?"
- "Inundada."
- "; Y el fuego?"
- "Apagado."
- "; Y la máquina?"
- "Muerta."

El capitán gritó—

- "; Lugarteniente Ockeleford!"
- "Presente," respondió el interpelado.
- "; Con cuantos minutos contamos?"
- "Con veinte."
- "Bastan," dijo el capitán, "Que cada cual se embarque por su turno!" Teniente Ockeleford,—"; Tenéis pistolas?"
 - "Sí," contestó.
- "Saltad el craneo á todo hombre que quiera pasar antes que una mujer!"

Todos callaron. Nadie se resistió.

La multitud sentiase anonadada por la grandeza de aquella alma.

La Mary á su vez había botado sus lanchas al mar y acudía al socorro de los náufragos.

El embarque se operó con orden y casi sin lucha.

Hubo, como siempre, tristes egoísmos; pero también, como siempre, patéticos rasgos de desenterés. Harvey, impasible en su puesto de capitán, mandaba, dominaba, dirigía; se ocupaba de todo y de todas; gobernaba con calma aquella angustia y parecía dar órdenes á la catástrofe.

Se hubiera dicho que el naufragio le obedecía.

A cierto tiempo gritó-

"Salvate, Clemente!"

Clemente era el grumete,—un niño.

El buque se sumergía ya en la profundidad de las aguas.

El transbordo del Normandy á la Mary se hacía cada vez con más rapidez.

"Apresúraos," murmuró el capitán.

Al expirar los veinte minutos el vapor se eclipsó.

La proa se hundió poco á poco; después la popa.

El capitán Harvey, de pié sobre la toldilla, no hizo un gesto, no pronunció una palabra, y se sumergió en el abismo.

Sólo se vió á través de la bruma la siniestra sombra del buque perderse para siempre.

Tal fué el trágico fin del capitán Harvey.

Que desde el cielo reciba el adios del que en una ocasión solemne obtuvo hospitalidad en el buque que le sirvió de tumba. Ningún marino de la Mancha (Straits) le igualaba en grandeza.

Después de haberse impuesto toda su vida al deber de ser un hombre, usó al morir el derecho de ser un héroe.
